Russia Asks For Time To Consider Latest Plan

New U. N. Proposal Ties Lifting of Blockade to Soviet Marks Agreement

Paris, Oct. 22 (U.P.)—A three-point proposal which could end the Berlin crisis was put up to the Big Four powers by "neutral" countries at a tense, dramatic meeting of the United Nations Security Council today.

At the request of Soviet Delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky, the Council adjourned until 3 p. m. Monday to give Moscow time to consider it.

The proposal calls on the United States, Britain, France and Russia: 1. To prevent any incident which might aggravate the Berlin situation.

2. To remove at once all travel restrictions due to Russia's blockade and the counter-measures taken by the Western Allies; and to work out by November 20 an agreement to make the Russian-issued German mark official for all four sectors of the city.

3. Within 10 days from November 20, or on a date mutually acceptable to the Big Four, to open a Council of Foreign Ministers "on all outstanding problems concerning Germany as a whole."

Delegates Optimistic

Sudden hope that the six neutrals' resolution might at least be the basis for a solution of the Berlin crisis threw some U. N. delegates into almost a carnival mood. Delegates of the Western Allies were not so optimistic. They tentatively accepted the proposal themselves. They feared that Russia might pull a diplomatic "trick."

There was no doubt, however, that Vishinsky had shown great interest in the proposal.

The Western Allies believe it possible that Russia was feeling the pressure of world opinion and may be ready to compromise.

The developments in the Security Council were accompanied by a gesture of unanimity in the U. N. Political Committee. It approved unanimously a Mexican resolution calling on the big powers to settle their differences and conclude peace treaties with Germany and Japan "in the briefest possible time."

This was a day of sudden rumors and sudden super-secret meetings before the Council assembled 58 minutes late.

Juan A. Bramuglia of Argentina, acting chairman of the Council and leader of the neutrals, opened the day with a conference with delegates of the three Western Allies in his hotel. Philip C. Jessup represented the United States.

Then Bramuglia talked to Vishinsky.

The rumor spread at once, and See NATIONS, Page 3, Column 1.

Steamship Ablaze East of Hatteras Radios for Help

Baltimore, Oct. 23 (AP)—City-owned radio station WMH reported tonight it received distress messages from the S.S. Caracas saying it was 60 miles east of Cape Hatteras, N. C.

The message, received at 11:14 p. m., said: "Will leave ship in few minutes."

In New York, the Coast Guard said the ship was of Venezuelan registry and was of 3799 gross tons.

It said the Coast Guard cutter Cherokee, Agassiz and John Quill have been ordered out of Norfolk to assist.

Gales and rough seas have been reported in the area of the stricken vessel, the Coast Guard said.

Later, Radio Marine Corp. in New York said it had picked up a message from the skipper of the Caracas saying that if it became necessary to abandon ship he would keep the automatic alarm on.

At 11:44 p. m. (EST), Radio Marine said it began picking up signals from the automatic alarm. These ceased at 11:55 p. m. (EST).

Former Mental Patient Husband Held in Strangling Of Alexandria Woman, Baby

BONNIE ALEXANDER Infant killed with mother

Herbert D. Alexander, Jr., 23, a Navy veteran recently treated for a mental disorder, telephoned Alexandria police about 1 p. m. yesterday, saying, "Come and get me. I've killed my wife and baby."

Police found his wife, Gloria, 21, strangled on the floor of the bedroom of their home, apartment 102, Beverly Plaza Apartments, 3908 Elbert ave., Alexandria. Their blue-eyed 18-month-old daughter, Bonnie, lay on the bed, also strangled to death.

Husband Slashes Self

Alexander was sitting on a sofa when police arrived, his wrists and the crooks of both arms slashed with a razor. A trail of blood went from the bedroom to the bathroom, and into the living room and kitchen-dinette of the apartment.

There was a small pool of blood in the bedroom. Cigarette butts were scattered about the living room floor.

Later, said police, young Alexander, almost incoherent, repeated again and again, "I killed my family. I couldn't stand it any longer."

Just before police arrived at the apartment in the "Arlandria" section, Mrs. Alexander's mother, Mrs. Ella Gross, of 213 6th st. se., Washington, had been summoned by a neighbor, fearful that something was wrong when Mrs. Alexander had failed to keep a shopping appointment.

The neighbor, Mrs. Elizabeth McCarthy, who lives in the apartment above, had telephoned Mrs. Gross and they got a key to the Alexander apartment from the janitor.

"Mrs. Gross opened the door, but I stayed in the hallway because I was afraid something was wrong," said Mrs. McCarthy.

"I saw him (Alexander) standing inside the door, beside a telephone, with his back to the door."

Mrs. Gross walked into the bedroom, and came out crying. "The baby is dead," said Mrs. McCarthy. She had not seen the body of the child's mother on the opposite side of the bed. Mrs. Gross then went up to the McCarthy apartment and called police, who had been notified of the tragedy by Alexander a few minutes earlier.

Inspector Russell Hawes of Alexandria said that when police reached the scene, Alexander "was shaking like a leaf."

Alexander did not explain what he meant by, "I couldn't stand it any longer."

Husband's Wounds Slight

Police said that neighbors saw the wife and child shortly before 9 a. m.

Mrs. Alexander, wearing a house dress, apparently was strangled first, they said, and then the baby's life was taken.

The baby, fully clothed, was found on her back, her feet dangling over the bed. Police said Alexander then apparently cut his wrists, walked into the bathroom to leave the razor blade there, and then wandered about the apartment.

His wounds, they said, were all superficial.

Police took him to Alexandria Hospital, for treatment of his wounds, before taking him to police headquarters for questioning.

The bodies of his wife and child were removed to Demaine's Funeral Home in Alexandria.

Four or five days ago, it was learned, Mrs. Alexander started working nights from about 6 to

MRS. GLORIA ALEXANDER Strangled in apartment

HERBERT D. ALEXANDER, JR. Navy veteran held

11 p. m. as a waitress at the Plaza Restaurant, 3909 Mt. Vernon ave., Alexandria. When she applied for a job, said the manager there, she said:

"I am afraid of my husband—he gets crazy sometimes."

Threats Reported

Once, said neighbors, Mrs. Alexander said her husband threatened to kill her. Last Saturday he left the apartment, police reports show, threatening to commit suicide. He returned Monday.

It was confirmed by police reports, which showed Mrs. Alexander reported her husband missing on October 17.

Neighbors described Mrs. Alexander as about 5 feet 10½ inches tall, and of slight build. They said Alexander got along well with the child, but became angered if the child appeared to "favor" the mother.

The couple had been married nearly four years.

Alexander's father and mother, who live at apartment 13, 636 1 st. se., did not learn of the tragedy until late yesterday, when they returned from the funeral of a friend at Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Herbert D. Alexander, sr., said he had a long talk with his son on Thursday, walking around the block of the latter's home with him, and he asked him if he were "sick."

The son said, "I'm not sick, but I have a fear—a fear of my job."

His father said he did not mention his family at all, and the elder Alexander gave him $50 for rent which the son needed.

District public school records show that Alexander attended Abbott Vocational School and Jefferson Junior High School, dropping out of the latter after completing the eighth grade when he reached 16.

In December, 1944, he received a journeyman's certificate as a skilled electric motor repairman after completing a 19-month course under direction of the War Manpower Commission.

Young Alexander had been employed for approximately two years as an armature winder at Ward & Sanford, Inc., 913 13th st. n.w., where his foreman, John W. Lainhart, described him as "an average worker."

The elder Alexander said his son enlisted in the Navy with his

Truman Bids For Miners' Votes Today

Will Pay Tribute To John Mitchell, Early UMW Chief, In Scranton Speech

By The Associated Press
President Truman departed last night for a Saturday-long tour of Pennsylvania, to be marked by a presidential tribute to an early-day leader of the United Mine Workers.

Mr. Truman's schedule calls for laying a wreath at the monument in Scranton to John Mitchell, former president of the UMW whose memory the present-day mine unionists under John L. Lewis still revere.

The trip is an openly political one in Mr. Truman's campaign to retain the Presidency. The White House merely listed the tribute to Mitchell, without any elaboration. However, it is no secret that Mr. Truman hopes for support for many of the UMW members, despite an anti-Truman resolution adopted at the Mine Workers' convention in Cincinnati this month and Lewis' denunciation of the President as "an enemy of your union."

The Scranton appearance includes a talk by Mr. Truman from the courthouse steps about 8:15 a. m. (EST). From there the presidential train will go to Wilkes-Barre for a talk an hour later, and then to Johnstown for a 5 p. m. talk. The day will be climaxed by a major speech in Pittsburgh at 9 p. m.

Mr. Truman had planned on flying, but weather prospects caused him to choose train travel instead. He will return to Washington Sunday morning, and then set out again Sunday night for the last big campaign trip, which will take him to Cleveland, Chicago, Boston and New York before the wind-up at Independence, Mo., his home town.

Churchill Planned Death If Captured, 'Protector' Says

Hobart, Tasmanian, Oct. 22 (AP)—Sir James Bissett, former captain of the liner Queen Mary, says Winston Churchill planned his own death during the war rather than risk falling into enemy hands.

In a speech at Launceston last night, Bissett said he was responsible for the safety of Britain's wartime prime minister on three voyages on the Queen Mary.

Always, he said, a special lifeboat crew was standing by to take Churchill should the liner be sunk. In addition a man stood by with a loaded pistol with orders to shoot Churchill should he capture by the Germans seem imminent, Bissett said.

(In London, Churchill's secretary said Churchill had heard of Bissett's speech but had "no comment at all.")

Truman Asks Campaign Silence On Dewey's Deferment in Draft

President Truman personally requested the Democratic National Committee to refrain from making campaign fodder of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's draft deferment during World War II.

Mrs. Indira Edwards, director, Women's Division, Democratic National Committee, made this disclosure at a press conference yesterday in committee headquarters.

The subject arose when a reporter asked why the Democratic Party had failed to point out that the GOP presidential candidate did not offer himself for wartime service.

As to why the President asked that the matter not be made campaign ammunition, Mrs. Edwards said: "Because of the President's innate decency, he did not want the draft question raised. The President himself tried to get into the last war despite his over-age status."

Devers States New Policy 'Human Treatment,' Posts Near Home Promised Recruits

York, Pa., Oct. 22 (AP)—Gen. Jacob L. Devers told the mothers of America tonight that every youth drafted into the Army "will be treated as a human being, never a raw recruit."

His hair will be cut "not particularly short, but the way he wants it himself—just so it's neat."

The general, Chief of Army Field Forces, painted this picture of what will happen to the Nation's youth in the peacetime Army in a prepared address to a Pennsylvania convention of the American War Mothers.

1. He will be sent to a post "as near home as possible."

2. His instructors will try "to establish a personal relationship with the incoming recruit."

3. He will be explained "the reason for everything he does which is new to him."

4. No matter how or when he arrives, "someone will meet him and he will be given 'a chance to ask questions.'"

5. "His uniforms are individually fitted."

6. The Army will insist "that he write home."

7. He will be interviewed by his company commander and chaplain, each of whom also will write personal letters to his mother.

8. The young man gets "an advance on his pay" immediately.

9. Neither he nor his instructors will use profanity.

Dewey Asks Backers Not To Use Abuse

Urges Them Not To Reply in Kind If Democrats Adopt 'Desperate' Tactics

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today called on his supporters to "look ahead four years" and end the present presidential campaign without "vituperation and abuse."

The confident-appearing GOP nominee told a midtown rally of several hundred of his backers that the Democrats may resort in the next few days to tactics of "desperation."

"I have no doubt," he said, "that they will intensify their campaign of fear and there will be increasing vituperation and abuse."

"I would like to ask all of those who believe with us in the necessity of bringing unity to our country to meet the great problems ahead, not to respond in kind at any time under any circumstances whatever the provocation."

His 24-Term Candidacy

In a second brief speech to a group gathered in the basement of a voluntary committee headquarters Dewey said that if the election is won "without recrimination" he feels his backers will be better satisfied with the result "and happy four years from now."

This was interpreted as a reference to his possible candidacy for a second term if he wins November 2.

The Republican nominee did not mention any one by name in forecasting the opposition will resort to "desperation" tactics.

Repeating his appeal for unity, Dewey said that unless it is achieved this Nation cannot mobilize all of its strength for world peace.

The heavy responsibilities ahead can be met, he said, "if in the winning of this election we have done so without creating artificial divisions, without creating hatreds, without indulging in vituperation or abuse."

Counts on Democrat Votes

"Under those circumstances we can so unite our people, regardless of how they have voted, regardless of where they live or what they do for a living, that we can mobilize the enormous strength of our country for the most precious cause on earth—that of the peace of the world."

Dewey predicted that "millions of Democrats and independents" would join in support of his program on election day.

Returning to Albany tonight the Republican presidential nominee will work there on four major speeches to be made next week.

Dewey will speak in Chicago Tuesday night, Cleveland Wednesday night, Boston Thursday night, and in Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

On his way to Boston Thursday See DEWEY, Page 3, Column 6.

Jury Quizzes Thomas' Aides On 'Kickbacks' From Rebels

Justice Dept. Opens Inquiry Into Alleged Pay-Roll Irregularities

By Howard Dutkin Post Reporter
A District grand jury yesterday began investigating charges that Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.), mishandled his payroll and received "kickbacks" from employees of his congressional office.

George Morris Fay, United States Attorney for the District, prosecuting the case for the Department of Justice, yesterday presented "a few witnesses" to the grand jury.

Names of the witnesses were withheld but it was learned some were members of Thomas' office staff.

Among those who appeared before the jury—the regular October panel—was Assistant Attorney General Alex Campbell. He was understood to have given the jury a report on an FBI investigation into charges published by Columnist Drew Pearson of irregularities in Thomas' payroll.

Pearson's charges formed the basis of a petition signed by 17 New Jersey attorneys several weeks ago asking the Justice Department to investigate.

In addition to the "kickback" allegations, Pearson had charged that Thomas, chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, had placed relatives on his payroll without requiring them to do any work.

Thomas' committee had been working with the Justice Department in connection with the committee's hearings into alleged Communist activities, especially in the Government.

The Congressman had been pressing Attorney General Tom Clark to take action against a number of persons investigated by the Government.

Some fighting was reported at Kwangyang, 5 miles east of Suncheon, late Thursday. There was no word on the outcome.

Yosu has been alternately reported in rebel and loyal hands. The latest advances indicated it was still held by the rebels.

United States Army headquarters had relayed accounts from Korean sources that Yosu was recaptured with almost no opposition and that there was fighting inside and around Suncheon, 20 miles northwest.

Korean liaison pilots, however, said they could see no major conflict around Suncheon, and the spokesmen could only reiterate confidence the rebellion soon would be stamped out.

Korean police confirmed a broadcast from the radio of Soviet-dominated north Korea that the rebels had executed anti-Communists, but the police had no details.

American occupation authorities finally agreed to help four American correspondents go to the scene 150 miles south of Seoul after President Syngman Rhee gave his

3 Men Also Convicted

Philadelphia, Oct. 22 (AP)—A Federal jury today convicted an AFL union, two of its officials and a third man on charges of violating the Hobbs Anti-Racketeering Act.

The four were accused of conspiring to interfere, obstruct and affect interstate commerce by extortion at the 125 million-dollar-a-year Dock Street wholesale fruit and produce market in Philadelphia.

Two associations, also accused in the case, were acquitted.

Those convicted were: Harry (Turk) Daniels, president of Local 629, AFL Produce, Poultry, Fish and Oystermen Drivers and Helpers Union; Abraham Goldberg, former president of the union and now its secretary and treasurer; Fred Schlein, former president of the Perishable Fruit and Produce Haulers Association and former business manager of the Wholesale Fruit and Vegetable Distributors Association; and The AFL Producemen's Union.

Acquitted were the two associations.

Maximum penalty is 20 years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine for each of the individuals and a $10,000 fine for the union.

The trial lasted five weeks. Government attorneys said they considered the case a test for the Federal Hobbs Act, which bars racketeering.

Thousands Given Order to Shoot if Necessary; 2 Killed, Scores Wounded

Paris, Oct. 22 (U.P.)—The French government called thousands of army, mobile guards and gendarme corps reservists to the colors tonight and authorized security forces to shoot if necessary to cope with rioting strikers in the central France coal fields.

The government's order followed day-long fighting in which two strikers were killed and scores of persons wounded while attacking mines held by French troops and Republican guards.

Guns were fired by both sides for the first time in the 19-day coal strike.

Communist-led miners were handed guns tonight for what union leaders warned was to be a showdown battle with 7000 troops and guards quartered in St. Etienne, in the heart of the central coal belt.

The government's order, issued after a four-hour emergency cabinet meeting, called to the colors, among others, the military class of 1946, which was freed from training a few months ago. It also gave prefectures the right to ban the publication of any union communication and said foreigners found taking part in strike violence would be thrown out of France.

Two strikers were wounded fatally and at least 50 persons were injured when mobile guards opened fire on a Communist-led mob of 1500 which attacked a mine near St. Etienne.

A second gang of more than 1500 attacked another pit and was routed by steel-helmeted guards wielding rubber truncheons and using rifles as clubs. Many strikers were marched away at gun point.

The town of Firminy, 12 miles southwest of St. Etienne, scene of both clashes, was littered with broken bottles, clubs, iron pipes and heavy iron nuts and bolts which the strikers threw at troops and police.

Strike-Vote Meetings Set

Railroad, port and machine shop workers called strike-vote meetings, threatening to paralyze France's already crippled industry. All are affiliated with the Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor (CGT).

Cardinals and archbishops of France publicly denounced the use of strikes as a weapon for political ends and for ultimate harm to the nation itself and an infringement of the authority of the state.

The Combefort mine at Firminy had been held by Government security forces since early yesterday. At about 4:30 p. m. today some 1500 strikers advanced up a hill to attack a strong force of guards and police.

As the strikers neared the mine, guards charged with rifle butts and truncheons through a hail of stones and pieces of jagged iron. Shots were heard, but it was not known which side fired first. After a second charge by security forces, the strikers retreated.

Woman, 82, Wins Place in Finals Of Queen Contest

An 82-year-old great-grandmother won a place in the finals of the contest to decide the queen of the second annual National Capital Home Show last night at the Armory.

Eleven entrants appeared for the semifinals and when the applause had died, the judges decided it a tie between Mrs. Agnes Johnson, 82, of 3439 24th st. se., and Mrs. Peggy Devers, 19, of 5409 7th st. n.w., an employee of the FBI.

The judges didn't make the decision themselves. They left that to the audience of about 2000 and an applause meter.

A widow, Mrs. Johnson is the mother of 9 children and has 11 grandchildren and 7 great-grandchildren. She reared her children after her husband's death by breeding poultry and making clothes.

U. N. Truce Halts Israel-Egypt War

Cautious Move

U. S. Studies Project Type Israel Loan

The United States has taken the first cautious steps toward lending money to the government of Israel.

It was learned yesterday that the Export-Import Bank has agreed to consider applications from Israel for "project-type" loans. This type of credit will be different from the 100-million-dollar loan which Israel sought without success last spring.

Under the present procedure, the Israel government must first submit full details of the power plant or harbor development or other "project" it wants financed. The bank must then satisfy itself that the project is sound and that any loans it makes will have a reasonable prospect of being repaid.

A spokesman for the Export-Import Bank said yesterday that no application had yet been received from Israel.

The bank's directors agreed on the new policy after getting a State Department opinion that the political permanence of the new state of Israel was assured, and that it would be proper for Israel to apply for "project-type" credits. Action on last spring's request was postponed because of what were described as unsettled political conditions in Palestine.

The talk of a loan last spring produced an outcry from the Arab countries and from Great Britain, which felt the money might be used to buy arms and embitter the situation in the Middle East. A "project-type" credit, of the kind now offered, could not be used for such a purpose.

The new policy not only has the State Department's approval, but was reported yesterday to have been approved by the National Advisory Council, the top-level interdepartmental body that determines American lending policy abroad.

Britain Claims Jet Bomber Outruns Fighters of Type

London, Oct. 22 (A).—Britain is bidding for jet bomber supremacy with a secret plane designed to reach 620 miles an hour, authoritative sources here said today.

The new aircraft is expected to outrun all but the fastest jet fighters now operating just below the speed of sound.

The two-jet medium-range air weapon, now in the painting and polishing stage, is designed to meet demands by Britain's air chiefs for a bomber able to work at 35,000 feet. Details are still closely guarded. The power plant is the recently developed Rolls-Royce Avon, a multistage axial-flow jet, still on the Air Ministry secret list. The Avon is claimed to be the world's most powerful jet with a thrust which sources described as well in excess of 5000 pounds.

Nir Am, The Negev, Oct. 22 (NYHT).—The desert war between Israel and Egypt came to an abrupt halt this afternoon in compliance with the United Nations truce directive.

Sir: United Nations observer teams from Tel Aviv moved into the northern Negev at 3 p. m. Israel time, when the cease fire became effective. They heard few brief exchanges of small arms and a terse antiaircraft barrage at Majdal, but offensive action had halted.

The Jewish army laid down its arms reluctantly after the government had delayed terminating hostilities as long as it could without incurring U. N. action. In the final

Arabs Predict Delay In Palestine Debate

Paris, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—The United Nations 58-member political committee is scheduled to discuss Palestine Saturday, but Arab delegates predicted debate would be delayed at least until Monday.

12 hours, the Israeli air force made its last military run a heavy one, bombing Isdud, Majdal, Gaza, El Rish and Faluja repeatedly.

The Egyptians have been neatly compartmented and there is no main base in contact with another. It will be difficult for the Egyptians to supply their bases without Jewish acquiescence. It will be even more difficult to persuade the Israeli army to relinquish its new holdings.

Jewish staff officers in the south said that all the vast desert region, except for a thin coastal strip was under Israeli control.

As the fighting subsided, Henry Morgenthau made his first visit to the south front. He inspected the battered settlement of Negba, and pledged that American Jewry would help in its reconstruction.

Egypt Says Israel Plane Violated Cease-Fire

Cairo, Egypt, Oct. 22 (P).—A spokesman for the Egyptian War Ministry said tonight a Jewish plane dropped a bomb on an Egyptian position at Deir Suneid, in southern Palestine, after the United Nations cease-fire went into effect.

The spokesman reported ground, air and sea actions took place in southern Palestine for 24 hours preceding the cease-fire.

Nations Drop British Tag

London, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—The word "British" has been dropped from the official title of the British Commonwealth of Nations, nominally ending Britain's domination of the group.

A communique issued at the close of the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' meeting announced the Prime Ministers had agreed "to take all appropriate measures to deter and resist aggression."

This phrase was taken to mean that Commonwealth nations had agreed to the British proposal that they rearm and support Europe's union.

Death Threats Sent Consul In Jerusalem

United States Consul General John J. McDonald in Jerusalem recently has been receiving an average of two anonymous "death" letters a week from the terrorist Stern gang, the former head of the consulate marine guard disclosed yesterday.

Sgt. Carlos Ballou, a slow-talking Kentuckian from Pinson Fork, told about it at a news conference.

He related that since Count Folke Bernadotte, United Nations mediator, was assassinated, McDonald has been getting letters telling him "you are next on the list."

"It was one of my jobs" drawled the sergeant "to see that he wasn't."

Swedish Count Bernadotte and a French aide were killed by four men in Jerusalem September 17 while on an official truce inspection tour of Jewish territory. The Israeli government blamed the assassinations on the Stern gang, which has since been outlawed. Ballou said the Marine guard experienced some sniping but none was injured, although one man "got his shoe-sole shot off."

He said the snipers usually operated from a distance of about 700 yards, and "if you happened to get in the way it is just your own tough luck because they can't tell whether you are an American, an Italian or what."

low opinion of the Arab-Jewish warfare which he said was mostly of the guerrilla type. He noted that neither side has much air-power, and said the only bombing he witnessed was by two cub planes which dropped 25 pounds in a cemetery outside Jerusalem.

Berlin Reds Adopt Draft Constitution

By Marguerite Higgins

Berlin, Oct. 22 (NYHT).—The chamber" wielding the greater Communist-dominated People's power. The upper chamber rep- Council accepted by acclamation resents the states.

The premier is intended to have the real power, and a coalition government is envisaged, showing Communist intention to keep the bloc system of parties now pre- valent in the Soviet zone and in eastern Europe.

The constitution limits farm property to 100 hectares (247 acres).

There are provisions for pro- tecting individual freedom, but they do not apply if an individual "incites to boycott against demo- cratic institutions," nor do they tell who is to arrive at this definiti- on.

The flag voted by the people's council is black, red and gold.

proved true, that Vishinsky had asked for a delay in a vote on the proposal, so he could get new instructions from the Kremlin.

Western delegates, once said they would not oppose delay, though they wanted a vote "fairly soon."

It was rumored the neutrals were making substantial changes in their resolution on the basis of Bramuglia's talks with Vishinsky and the Westerners. This also proved true.

Time Extended

The resolution at first gave only 15 days for an agreement on the Berlin currency problem. That would have set the deadline at about November 9 or 10, assuming the resolution passed, instead of November 20.

While Bramuglia talked to the Western delegates he kept in constant telephonic communication with Vishinsky in the Russian embassy. Thus his talk almost amounted to one with all four delegations.

Before 3 p. m., the hour set for the Security Council meeting, the great auditorium was jammed. It was 45 minutes before the chief delegates, smiling, started mounting the stage, and the meeting opened at 3:58.

By agreement which Bramuglia reached in advance with the Big Four delegates, he opened the Council meeting by present- ing the neutral resolution.

Then he spoke and was followed by his fellow neutral delegates from Canada, Belgium, China, Colombia and Syria. Their speeches showed the neutrals work- ing desperately to avoid a show- down vote on the demand of the Western Allies that the U. N. flatly order Russia to end her blockade and denounce her as threatening world peace.

"We desire to avoid a danger- ous decision which might lead to war," Bramuglia said.

Westerners Huddle

While his speech was being translated the Western delegates slipped into the wings of the the- ater stage for a huddle.

"This resolution embodies a for- mula for peace with honor for every country," said China's T. F. Tsiang. "If it is accepted unani- mously it might well turn out to be a decisive event in the history of the U. N. and the history of the world."

"If there is a violation of inter- national peace the catastrophe would not be restricted in any way to those directly engaged in it," said Faris El Khoury, Syria.

As soon as the speeches ended, the meeting was adjourned. None of the Big Four deputies spoke. They will announce their positions Monday.

2 Red Fliers 'Sold' on Va. By Broadcast

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—Two Russian fliers who deserted to the American zone in Austria and want to live in Virginia because of a Voice of America broadcast, heard a commentator declare that "throughout the history of the United States, Virginia has played a prominent role, in almost every respect."

"Ideologically, in its champion- ship of the idea of individual independence, and in the work of its famous men, culturally through its colleges, its writers and its contributions to architec- ture, and industrially through its introduction of tobacco growing to the Nation, Virginia has been in the forefront of the American States," a broadcast last July 1 said.

It added: "It is for these reasons that Virginia bears the nick- name of 'The Old Dominion,' an affectionate indication of her place among the States of the American Republic."

Although the two fliers, Anatolya Barsof, 31, and Piotr Pirogov, 27, told a news conference in Linz, Austria, that they wanted to live in Virginia because of a descrip- tion of the fairs they had heard, the program, the only one de- voted to Virginia, did not men- tion fairs.

The program began with a geo- graphical description of the State and then proceeded with an histor- ical summary from the settlement treated in disorder down the hill. They left behind about 50 wounded and injured, one of whom died almost immediately. Several guards were wounded.

Hand-to-Hand Combat

At one point in the fighting, eyewitnesses said, the guards were driven behind their protec- tive barricades in furious hand- to-hand combat. When it ap- peared they would be over- whelmed, they opened fire with rifles and submachine guns, in- formants said.

Earlier in the day, strikers fought non-Communists who tried to return to work at Roche-la-Moliere, in the same area. Re- publican guards broke up the picket lines, but the miners were advised to go back home.

At Monceau-les-Mines, 90 miles north of St. Etienne, police used tear gas to drive back a large group of strikers. Alarm sirens brought reinforcements, however, and po- lice were overwhelmed, disarmed and manhandled. Strikers over- turned several military trucks and captured another truck bring- ing police reinforcements from nearby Le Creusot.

Two soldiers were injured seriously near St. Etienne when strik- ers threw them off a bridge onto the railroad tracks about 20 feet below.

At Lille, four persons were killed in their home by gas fumes during a confusing, day-long series of gas service suspensions.

Strikers took the offensive in the northern coal fields, seizing many pits which had been work- ing throughout the strike. Troops have not been in action in the north.

The conservative newspaper Le Monde described the strike move- ment as "insurrection." It added: "The Cominform may address its congratulations to its French sec- tion. It has done a fine service to Asiatic despotism. It has worked well."

Socialist Interior Minister Jules Moch charged that the Communist Information Bureau ordered the coal strike in an attempt to disrupt the French economy.

Government bulletin said 31 per cent of the pits in the St. Etienne

Donald Byford, the British hosiery maker, has found a process that goes further than just making hose shrink-resistant. His wool hose not only keep their size in the wash, but keep the natural warmth of wool, its wearing qualities and softness, too. Made of Australian wool, these elas- tic top ankle hose reflect the Brit- ish talent for fine knitting. Sizes 10½ to 13—and please note: don't "step-up" your size when you buy Byfords because your size remains your right size after every washing.

Reporters Shown Nazi Atrocity Film

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Army yesterday treated newsmen to an hour of stark horror—the showing of a previously suppressed film of Nazi atrocities.

Appropriately entitled "Death Mills," it tells the story of the German concentration camps as they were when liberated by United States forces. The scenes of Belsen, Buchenwald and other hell spots promise nightmares for weeks.

Just why the press was shown the 1945 official film at this date is not quite clear. Reporters were invited to a private showing of "certain motion picture films concerning Ise Koch, the Dachau War Crimes Trials Buchenwald concentration camp."

About a score—interested in the Koch case—journeyed over to the Pentagon. There was only one direct reference during the entire showing which bore on the question of the guilt of the "Bitch of Buchenwald."

Statement Called Hearsay
That was a statement by the official Army narrator that some lampshades shown were made from human skin at the direction of the wife of the commandant of Buchenwald. This was the sandy-haired, hard-faced Ise.

Since the reduction of the woman's sentence from life imprisonment to four years by Gen. Lucius Clay, American commander in Germany, a storm of protest has been raised in this country. Clay defended his action on the ground that the evidence against her was mostly hearsay and that a review of the record cast doubt on the credibility of the witnesses.

An Army spokesman, Col. George S. Eyester, said yesterday that the film narrator's statement also was based solely on hearsay and that all the record showed was that she was the wife of the Buchenwald commandant.

But after viewing "Death Mills" and the other concentration camp footage, an unbiased observer can well wonder whether—regardless of legal questions—any penalty is too great for a person who even tolerated what went on at Buchenwald. And Ise Koch stayed on at the camp for 16 months after her husband was executed by the Nazis for stealing.

Here are some of the things we saw:
A woman inmate with a huge, untended sore as big as two hands on her hip. Naked, living skeletons being helped out of dungeons by American troops. A close-up of a man whose toes were eaten away by trench-foot, through lack of medical attention.

Acres of corpses, killed in every imaginable way by the Nazi guards before they fled. A man bayoneted in the neck, flies hovering around his open mouth. Scores lying in a heap where they had been mowed by machine-gun fire. Hundreds of others heaped in huge piles like cordwood, burned to death by fire or fried by electrocution.

A majority appeared to have starved to death, judging from the lack of flesh on their naked frames. They included men, women and children.

Shown were the shower baths which poured out poison gas rather than water, which killed thousands, perhaps millions. The over-all toll of persons murdered by the Germans has been put at 20 millions.

Hair for Mattresses
Worst of all were the earthly remains of the victims and the uses to which they were put. In one warehouse were countless stacks of bundles containing women's hair, ready for shipment to German mattress makers.

On a long table were trays of human teeth, dentures and pillars. The gold extracted was shipped to the Reichsbank. Use was made of everything. There was a huge pile of women's shoes, stripped from the murdered victims. Even, believe it or not, a salvage dump of children's toys.

Colonel Eyester said that "Death Mills" was prepared at the request of the State Department and shown to audiences all over Germany. An American translation was made, but due to a change in policy, it was never released in the United States.

One reporter present said he was told by an Army officer that the suppression was ordered by the State Department. Eyester said he knew nothing about this, but concluded that the film was never released because of lack of public interest.

Another official said that all of the footage shown in "Death Mills" had been declassified and made available to distributors but not used. The actual production, however, was suppressed and contains the words "not to be shown to the American public without special authorization of the War Department."

China Asked What Next on Soviet Lapses

Nanking, Oct. 22 (AP)—China's Legislative Yuan voted today to ask the national government what measures it was prepared to take "if Russian violations of the Sino-Soviet friendship treaty are exposed."

Pan Chao-ying, legislator and bitter anti-Communist editor of the Catholic paper Yi Shih Pao, proposed the resolution.

"It is a well-known fact that the Soviets are violating the treaty, but authorities are keeping silent in fear of severe repercussions," he said.

Reds Prepare Assault On North China

Peiping, Oct. 22 (AP)—Pro-government Chinese dispatches today said the Communists were concentrating men and supplies in Jehol for a full-scale assault on north China.

The only hot battlefield at the moment was near Chinghsien, where national armies were reported inching closer to that key to south Manchuria.

approval. The trip was planned for Saturday.
Until the appeal to Rhee, American officers declined to assist. Brig. Gen. We can tell you more than you can find out yourselves."

U. S. Permits Sale of 4 Warplane Types in Latin America; Two Are Jets

The Government yesterday authorized the sale of four types of modern warplanes to Latin American countries.

Two jet fighters that today make up the backbone of the United States Air Force—the Lockheed F-80 Shooting Star and the Republic F-84 Thunderjet—are included.

Officials said the move was aimed at bolstering Western Hemisphere defense. If any substantial number of orders are placed, it also will strengthen the American aircraft industry.

The other two types released for Latin American sale are the Fairchild C-82 Jacquet, troop-carrying cargo plane, built at Frederick, Md., and the North American G-52 Twin Mustang, a 475-mile-an-hour long-range fighter propelled by two piston engines. The latter has flown nonstop from Honolulu to New York.

Both the F-80 and F-84 are rated in the 600-mile-an-hour class. However, much better jet fighters are coming along. The North American F-86 has gone 670 miles an hour fully loaded with guns and ammunition.

The C-82 Packet, which can carry 48 fully armed paratroopers, is now being replaced by a later model.

The Air Force announcement said the agreement with other American republics to buy new or surplus planes of these types in the open market, provided the sales do not "endanger the national security or interfere with Air Force procurement."

Purchasers must agree that the planes will be used for military purposes and that they will not be resold. No applications have been received as yet for any aircraft, it was said.

Officials said the release was by no means a "blanket offer."

The British have sold jet fighters to western European nations, including Norway and Sweden, and also to Russia. They have licensed the manufacture of one jet engine type in this country.

The program will feature the Army and Air Force Bands, the 210-voice Central High School Choir, the Air Force Band and Glee Club and the Marine Band Fife and Drum Corps.

The choral theme of international good will is to be climaxed by the singing of the U.N. song by Master Sergt. Abusha Roberson, Air Corps Band leader.

Speakers will include Sen. Alben W. Barkley, Democratic vice-presidential candidate; Dr. Daniel J. Keefe, U.S. Ambassador to Honduras, and Mrs. Harper Sibley, consultant to the United States Military Government in Germany on formation of women's groups to stimulate interest in democracy.

The Rev. C. Leslie Glenn, chairman of the Committee on Religious Life of the Nation's Capital, will give the invocation.

Free tickets for the celebration may be obtained from the Board of Trade offices, Star Building, 2nd and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

The student program at American University School of Languages will begin at 7:30 p. m. today. Among those participating will be Senor Don Arturo Dillon, Ambassador of Ecuador; Senor Sava N. Kusanovic, Ambassador of Yugoslavia; Norman J. O. Malin, Ambassador of Australia.

Washington will officially observe United Nations Day with a mass meeting and musical salute at 8:30 p. m. Sunday in Constitution Hall.

In another of the local week-end U.N. birthday observances 18 colleges and universities in the Greater Washington area will hold roundtable discussions and a U.N. dance at American University this afternoon.

Interdenominational services at the National Cathedral at 4 p. m. Sunday will be among the outstanding religious services planned.

The Sunday evening program at Constitution Hall will open with the lighting of a symbolic "flame of freedom" in the center of the stage. Edgar Morris, chairman of the sponsoring citizens' committee, said yesterday.

The program will feature the Army and Air Force Bands, the 210-voice Central High School Choir, the Air Force Band and the Air Force Band and the Marine Band Fife and Drum Corps.

The choral theme of international good will is to be climaxed by the singing of the U.N. song by Master Sergt. Abuna Robofsky, Air Force Band.

Speakers will include Sen. Alben W. Barkley, Democratic vice-presidential candidate; Dr. Daniel J. Keefe, U.S. Ambassador to Honduras, and Mrs. Harper Sibley, consultant to the United States Military Government in Germany on formation of women's groups to stimulate interest in democracy.

That Needed Sales Tax

The failure of the Eightieth Congress to enact sales tax legislation for the District has already deprived District employees of salary increases comparable to those recently granted Federal workers. This unwarranted discrimination not only entails undeserved hardship for the public servants directly affected, but it is bound to result in a loss of morale, impairing the efficiency of the services rendered to the people who live here. Furthermore, for lack of a sales tax, the District is confronted by a serious problem of finding revenues for balancing the budget in the coming fiscal year.

In the current hearings before the District Commissioners on the 1950 budget, enactment of a sales tax is again being urged as the only feasible method of securing the additional revenue required to maintain essential services and provide for certain capital outlays that are indispensable in the interest of public health and safety. Even with a 2 per cent sales tax, which the Board of Trade estimates would yield 13.5 million dollars, available city revenues would be far short of the amounts required to cover the budgetary estimates of department heads. Hence it would be necessary to do some rather drastic budget paring, in any case, to bring expenditures down to the level of available revenue.

Lacking a sales tax, the District will be faced by a choice between a so-called "austerity" budget that would deprive the community of much-needed services or an upping of real estate taxes that would impose heavy burdens on property owners and ultimately on tenants in the form of higher rentals. Pressure on Congress to increase Federal contributions to the District may possibly provide some relief; but that is a doubtful and indeterminate source of revenue that cannot be counted on. Attempts to secure more revenue from the District income tax would simply aggravate the inequities of the present law which Congress has repeatedly refused to correct. Consequently, by a process of elimination, a sales tax appears to be the only feasible method of securing any substantial amount of revenue.

In the opinion of The Washington Post such a tax would prove much less burdensome to the people of this community than any of the alternative means suggested for balancing the budget, especially with tax exemptions provided for food and medicines. Such a tax would also bring in revenue from many visitors and nonpaying residents who make no contribution to the upkeep of the public facilities that benefit them. Sales taxes undoubtedly occasion some inconvenience to purchasers, apart from the cost, as well as to the firms that have to collect and account for them. However, sales taxes have proved their worth as prolific revenue producers. And in these days of almost universal prosperity and full employment the claim that they impose excessive burdens on lower-income consumers has lost much of its force.

Bottleneck

"A rose is a rose is a rose," decreed the late Gertrude Stein and nobody yet has challenged the truth of the statement though many have wondered just what she meant by it. Perhaps, to hazard the unlikely, she meant to imply that a certain brand of whisky would taste as sweet under the name Three Roses. In any case, she seems to have had an idea not wholly out of character with a current controversy before the Federal Alcohol Tax Unit. The issue, as briefly as we can put it, is this: Scotch is Scotch or is it?

The argument, as we make it out, is triple-distilled. The Scottish makers of Scotch whisky and the Canadian makers of Canadian whisky think certain distillers in this country who make "Scotch-type" and "Canadian-type" whiskies are muscling in on the former's good names and markets with the help of misleading labels. They say it isn't Scotch if it isn't made in Scotland. These American distillers counter with the charge that the Scottish Scotch isn't what it purports to be either and its labels are misleading because of the age of the contents is not and does not have to be given. They say that the imported stuff should come under the same labeling rules as the domestic bottled goods. A third group, composed of American distillers who distribute the Scottish or Canadian product but do not make the imitation-type commodities, think all is well as it stands and would make no change in the regulations.

If the situation seems somewhat involved, we call your attention to the fact that alcohol, a well-known source of confusion, is at the bottle—pardon, the bottom—of it all. The Alcohol Tax Unit can expect no help from us in settling this bitter bottle battle. We are strictly neutral spirits in this controversy. For our purpose Scotch is Scotch IS Scotch. Or is it?

Military Needs

There is no objective yardstick for determining just how much money the armed forces will need next year to provide the security our national interest demands. Probably the sum is materially less than the 23 billion dollars the services reportedly would like to ask. By the same token, it undoubtedly is somewhat more than the 14.4 billion dollars President Truman mentioned last week. Actually, world events will determine how much further military expansion is necessary—and the prognosis of world events is constantly changing.

Precisely because it is impossible now to determine by other than guesswork what the international situation will be next spring, the new postponement in preparation of the 1950 military budget is wholly logical. Originally the date set for submission of budget figures to the Administration was September 15. At that time the deadline was moved ahead one month. Now it has been advanced a second time, to December 1. Even at that date it will be difficult to predict whether the tension with Russia will increase or diminish during the next fiscal year. But at least it will be possible to appraise the action of the United Nations General Assembly and to obtain an inkling of what, if anything, the Security Council can do toward resolving the impasse in Berlin.

During the war the common practice was for the armed forces to submit merely a simple statement of their needs at the beginning of each session of Congress. The budget itself usually was passed late in the session, and changes in details were made as the military situation warranted. To some extent the cold war requires a similar practice. However, the law now requires that Congress outline its objectives in a legislative budget shortly after the session begins. Furthermore, the size of the military budget to be approved has a direct relation to what is enacted for the rest of the economy. Hence, unless there is some drastic change in conditions, the December 1 deadline for submission of requirements to the Administration cannot be further postponed.

The President's desire to hold down military expenditures is understandable. A very real consideration enters in just how much the civilian economy can stand without the enactment of some sort of controls. But the military budget figure of 15 billion dollars set by Mr. Truman last July includes 600 millions for munitions Board stockpiling of scarce materials, and this is only 600 millions above the over-all 1949 budget allotment of 13.8 billions. Unless the President has information not generally known to justify his optimism, then he has been talking through his hat. The expansion of the armed force agreed upon last year was predicated on gradually increasing expenditures. Rising costs of materials alone have forced previous estimates out of kilter. Moreover, the great burden of costs for the additional personnel the services have authorized will come during the next fiscal year. The 70-air-group program will not be fully realized until 1952 even if it is in no way curtailed. In all probability, then, the 15-billion-dollar ceiling would mean an actual cutback in military preparations. Certainly there is nothing visible on the international horizon to warrant a cutback, and Mr. Truman bought not to be kidding the voters about it.

One thing ought to be accomplished for certain during the budgetary postponement. Secretary Forrestal ought to make sure that what he presents to the Administration and ultimately to Congress is a genuinely unified budget, with all points of controversy between the services ironed out in advance. This will lessen the likelihood that Congress will take parts of the program out of context, and it is the only way to avoid the kind of end runs that were all too frequent during the last session.

Upping The Air Lift

For the third time Gen. Lucius D. Clay has returned from Berlin on a hurried trip with an urgent request for more planes to operate the air lift. For the third time he has gotten more planes—this trip netting him an additional 66 C-54s. Of the approximately 200 C-54s now committed to "Operation Vittles" about 50 are normally off the run for check-ups and the like. The additional planes, if Clay calls them all in from various parts of the world, will give the air lift an effective fleet of about 200 planes on hand all the time and increase the fleet's aggregate capacity by some 400 tons or more.

Three consequences will flow from this prospective shift of military transport capacity. The first is to leave MATS practically stripped of C-54s, its basic cargo planes, for operations elsewhere. The C-54, with a capacity of 10 tons, is not a particularly new plane. It was used extensively during the war, notably over the Hump into China. No more are now being made. Neither are there any C-74s, Douglas cargo carriers of 25-ton capacity, on order at present. In short, the job must be done with what is on hand at the moment, and this leaves only planes of prewar design for the rest of MATS operations. "Operation Vittles" is a demonstration of undoubted ability to overcome extraordinary difficulties in a particular situation. It is also a demonstration of how little the transport arm of the military has been expanded and improved in equipment since the war.

The second consequence has to do with the situation in Berlin. An increase in the air lift fleet means that the average daily capacity can be more nearly maintained despite bad weather. With more planes on hand, the tonnage deficit due to bad flying weather—which is plentiful in Berlin's winter—can, it is hoped, be made up on days of good weather. As nearly as anything can, the additional capacity should assure Berlin of minimum food and fuel supplies through the winter.

The final consequence of the increase likewise has to do with Berlin, but in a diplomatic rather than gastronomic sense. Whether the Russians still hope the air lift will prove a failure and their blockade conversely a success, we cannot say. But if it should now appear to them that nothing they can do on the ground will prevent adequate supplies from reaching Berlin, they might be more inclined to remove the blockade. This is certainly not the least important consideration in the move to augment the air lift. Mr. Vishinsky's critical attitude toward the so-called "neutral" compromise probably forecasts a Soviet rejection of the proposal. But the Kremlin might suddenly reverse its course. The Politburo is not averse to abrupt change of tactics in recognition of reality, and the air lift is a fact the Russians cannot overlook, however embarrassing it may be to them.

Course Of Empire

Elsewhere on this page a correspondent reproaches us for what he considers an excessive optimism about the future of the human race, despite the recent revelations of the Messrs. Osborn and Vogt about the overpopulation of this earth and its rapidly diminishing resources. To our rescue comes an English savant, one Dr. William Olaf Stapledon, with a most encouraging report about the possibilities of migration to other planets before this one has been converted into a global desert by the procreative propensities of its inhabitants.

Assuming no serious interruptions to progress by an atomic war or something of that sort, the time is approaching when a journey to Mars by rocket transport will offer far fewer perils and hardships than the passage of the Atlantic offered to the sturdy colonizers of the New World in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, or than the Overland Trail to the doughty argonauts of the nineteenth century. The principal difficulty, we gather, would be climate. It would apparently be necessary for the first colonists to take along with them a good deal of machinery for mixing up an artificial atmosphere suitable to human beings and for creating a satisfactory water supply.

But with cheap and abundant atomic power available Dr. Stapledon thinks this should involve no insuperable difficulty. Then the Martian deserts could be reclaimed and put into cultivation. It is possible, of course, that resistance might be encountered from the present denizens of the planet, who presumably are much attached to their accustomed way of life, uncivilized though it probably is. But the Martians, if there are any such, would necessarily be, as Dr. Stapledon tells us, creatures of very low intelligence. Thus no doubt we should find them even easier to dispose of than were the American aborigines by the Spaniards and English.

It would not be long, we dare say, after the great rocket terminals had been put into operation before the place would be ready for subdivision and lots could be put on sale, at reasonable terms. We assume that there would be no great difficulty about building materials. To be sure the reported sparsity of vegetation indicates that until a few forests could be planted and matured, most of the lumber would have to be imported from the earth, but doubtless some local substitute would soon be found. A wonderful opportunity, of course, would be there for really intelligent planning. Instead of cities grown up haphazardly about some strategic fort or seaport and roadways determined by the vagaries of terrain there could be superbly designed communities and broad traffic lanes without sharp curves or intersections.

All this of course would cause the value of the properties to rise rapidly. Those who had neglected to seize the opportunity when it offered itself would now be obliged to look elsewhere for extraterrestrial homesites. Happily, there would remain Venus and Jupiter. Dr. Stapledon says that a good deal more effort and ingenuity would be required to make Venus habitable, but that it probably can be done, although a special race of pioneers would have to be bred from our equatorial people. On Jupiter the principal problem would be gravitation, which, as you know, is much stronger there than on the earth. A redistribution of human weight will be required to get from one place to another on Jupiter with any grace or comfort. Dr. Stapledon seems to think that it will be necessary for homo sapiens to abandon the upright carriage he has employed ever since he became one of the higher primates and to shift some of the load now carried by the hips and legs to the shoulders and arms.

It sounds sort of difficult, but we dare say it will come easier after a little practice. So that if you happen one of these days to observe us crawling up and down E street on all fours, you will understand the reason.

THE HEALER

He is the instrument of God,
And the blue rivers rush through his hands,
He is the citadel of light
And takes the darkness from the lands.
His is the power of the night
To bring sleep to the stricken.
In his fingers the lightning flows
And the swift winds quicken
The flame with which his brain glows.
His is the house of the Lord's Charity
And this door will not close
Against illness, pain or poverty.
He is the fulfillment of Heaven
And in his hands the healing lies
For God watches from out his eyes.

W. Marvin Smith

Your front-page account on October 21 of the death of W. Marvin Smith inexcusably intensifies the pain of his family and friends that inevitably follows upon such a tragedy. In addition, it casts a serious reflection on the integrity and intelligence of those responsible for the low journalism of the account.

Marvin Smith was a conscientious civil servant who served his Government for more than 30 years. There was no warrant for a sensational front-page story describing him as a "key witness" in the Hiss-Chambers controversy in an account the necessary implication of which is that his untimely end is somehow related to that controversy. Smith often notarized documents for fellow employees; the fact that he did so for Mr. Hiss was a happenstance without significance. The contemporary reports of his testimony before the House Committee, including The Washington Post's, treated it as such. STANLEY M. SILVERBERG, Washington.

Your paper, no less than others, appear to be guilty of exceptionally poor taste and judgment in your report of the tragic death of Marvin Smith. To call him a "key witness in the Hiss case" is a journalistic error and suggests that use has been made of the scare headline for the usual circulation reasons. Your own report of the story shows plainly enough that Mr. Smith's only connection with the Hiss case was with the notarization of an assignment of title which Hiss at no time denied signing. Smith, moreover, merely identified his own signature and not Hiss' to the instrument. Surely so remote a connection with the Hiss case does not warrant the headline used. Your paper owes its readers more responsible editing. S. W. S. Chevy Chase.

B-36 Vs. Carriers

I should think that proponents of naval aviation who are advocating the development of atomic carrier task forces were embarrassed to end by "taxpayer's" letter of September 29.

To compare the vulnerability of a B-36 to that of a carrier is ridiculous. The carrier is one of the most vulnerable targets in the world. It is an air base with an eggshell skin. It can maneuver in three directions—right, left and down—and with it may go a sizable investment. Which is the more vulnerable—a B-36 flying 300 miles an hour at night at 35,000 feet, in or above an overcast, or a carrier moving at 30 knots? The B-36 is exposed to enemy action for only a few hours, whereas the carrier is exposed to enemy air, surface and submarine action for weeks until it returns to the safety of its own harbors.

So it boils down to this: If the United States had an atomic carrier task force, and if we were at war, this task force would face a submarine threat against which we have no effective defense—not to mention the inevitable threat of air attack. As for steaming a carrier task force up to enemy coasts at the beginning of another war, it cannot be done with success if the experience of the last war means anything. Not until January, 1945, over three years after Pearl Harbor, did the Navy consider Jap airpower sufficiently weak to risk sending Admiral Halsey's tremendous carrier task force up to the Jap home islands for a quick sweep.

As for cost, the price of one carrier task force will purchase hundreds of the latest long-range bombers capable of delivering the atomic bomb to any target in a matter of hours.

Tryouts For Congressmen

By Malvina Lindsay

How Voters Choose

NEVER BEFORE have the men and women running for Congress been so confronted with questionnaires, voting records or pertinent inquiries from visiting delegations. For many citizens, as well as organized groups, aware of the great power over the future that the Eighty-first Congress will hold, are centering their political interest on the congressional contests.

The apathy of the 1948 congressional race when only 34 per cent of eligible voters went to the polls was not to be expected in a presidential year. Yet in presidential elections of the past legislators have often been left to ride to victory or defeat on the coattails of the men heading the tickets.

However, this year labor organizations are concentrating their campaign on congressional candidates. So are Americans for Democratic Action. Several national women's groups are supporting or opposing congressional candidates on the basis of their stands on international and social legislation. At least one great church organization is circulating its membership with candidates' records on social problems. Groups interested in such specific matters as housing, cost of living and Federal aid to education are challenging candidates to make their stands known.

ALL THIS might promise that the Eighty-first Congress would be the most carefully picked and enlightened to date. For when interest is stirred up in a congressional contest the party hacks or the tools of special interests are not so likely to slide in. Yet both political experts and psychologists warn that the peoples' voice may not be so effective or intelligent as might be hoped. And certainly the outcome of some primary contests has indicated this.

Since Congress is run by committees, the elderly, mentally rickety members of both parties who have built up seniority on important committees will again be at the helm. Most of these have been coming for years from "safe" districts politically and socially. They will keep on coming—and dominating.

On top of this, psychologists say that most voters are inept in choosing legislators. For one thing, they do not require that candidates qualify physically, mentally and emotionally for one of the highest offices in the land. Prospective members of Congress don't even have to file a Form 57, required of all Civil Service applicants.

True, there is no law for this—as yet. But voters do have it within their power to appraise candidates objectively rather than personally and emotionally, to vote for them on the basis of facts rather than whim, to look into records instead of merely listening to oratory.

HERE AGAIN the politician comes in, pointing out cynically that the average voter is interested only in his own pocket. He will do for him personally, or in the candidate's memory for names and heartiness in handshaking. Recently a woman voter in a closely fought primary campaign told a candidate who had made a brilliant and stirring speech that she was the seat of a retrogressive member of Congress, "no matter what you say I wouldn't vote against Senator Blank. He sent the loveliest wreath when my mother died."

Less excusable are the public-minded voters who carelessly ballot carelessly. They do not use scientific methods of looking into the service records of candidates—and thus appraising their future actions. For a candidate's general attitude toward political and social problems can be ascertained by the consistency of his voting or by his past stands on public matters.

How his votes in the future can be predicted to a large degree is shown in a recent study reported in the Journal of Applied Psychology by Dean R. Brimhall and Arthur S. Otis. The study was based on votes of 512 members of Congress on important measures during the last five years. It showed a marked consistency in voting both among liberal and conservative legislators. The more extreme the candidate was ideologically, the greater his voting consistency. It showed that a legislator's outlook on international or social measures, as expressed by his voting in one Congress, was almost certain to carry over in the next.

This year, with election records being disseminated on a wide scale, voters should be able to tell how their candidates have voted—or dodged whenever a touchy question came up; whether they showed a tendency to uphold special interests; or the public good; whether they showed courage or cowardice consistently in their stands.

More general looking into these questions might not send men to Congress who could override the dictatorship of entrenched committee heads. But it would be paying the way for better representative government to come.

Better Side Of Life
I commend you for articles like "Thousands Take To Parks." "Student Exchange Group Meets." "German Newsmen Visit D. C." In your October 18 issue, in our present world, there is so much bad or sensational news, that one can get plenty of kick out of reading about the better side of life for a change.

New Hunt For Headlines

THE REPORT persists that the House Un-American Activities Committee means to turn its attention next to the universities and the threat of "subversive" forces in higher education. The committee, so the report goes, will open up first on Columbia University in New York.

That would be in accord with the pattern established by Childs this headline-hunting body. Because the president of Columbia is Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, anything to do with that university gets a higher ratio of publicity.

But the committee is likely to find that President Eisenhower is prepared to meet them on their own ground. Before going headline hunting in the great university over which he presides, the members of the committee would do well to read the address he gave when he was formally installed as president.

In that address Eisenhower clearly stated the right of academic inquiry and the freedom to teach political doctrines considered evil. As the general pointed out, a medical student has not merely the right but the duty to study cancer and its causes and so does the political scientist have the right to explore the pathology of politics.

In the six months he has been at Columbia, Eisenhower has carefully and thoroughly surveyed the teaching staff. Aware of the possibility of an investigation, he has kept in mind the question of "un-American teaching." Recently he spent a day in frank and full discussion with the faculty of Teachers College, which is the branch of the university most often accused of radicalism.

Eisenhower came away convinced of the true Americanism of Teachers College. By taking statements out of their context and by other tricks of distortion some members of the faculty had been deliberately smeared.

THE HOUSE committee will find President Eisenhower prepared not merely to defend the record of Columbia but to praise it before the world. They will find in him an able and courageous champion of academic freedom.

What the committee would hope to find at Columbia is obvious. They would like to ferret out someone on the faculty who had fallen for communism, get him or her up before the movie cameras and then go to town as they have done in the past.

There may be such an individual or individuals. Columbia is a large institution made up of persons of many diverse origins and backgrounds. But such a discovery will have nothing to do with the great body of teaching at Columbia or, for that matter, at any other large American university.

Manifestations of thought coercion and guilt by association are developing in a frightening fashion. It is not merely rhodomontade to say that freedom of thought and inherently American are threatened today. I have been hearing of things that have happened here in Washington in connection with the loyalty investigation that I could hardly believe were happening in this free country of ours. Fear and suspicion are poisoning the lives of American citizens who have never had the slightest shadow of a thought of disloyalty.

BEFORE THE New York Herald Tribune forum the other day Paul A. Porter, former OPA director, made a suggestion that deserves serious consideration. He proposed appointment by the President of a committee of top-ranking Americans who would "appraise the dangers and disastors of political demagoguery in abolishing our freedoms while pretending to protect our security."

Specifically, Porter proposed that Eisenhower be named as the chairman of such a committee. Presumably the committee would be appointed by the incoming President.

But there are many arguments, it seems to me, for the appointment of such a committee by President Truman immediately after the election. And if General Eisenhower could be persuaded to accept the chairmanship, President-elect Dewey would be presumptuously well be should welcome the move.

With a new Republican Administration tensions should be lessened. Suspensions and fears should be allayed. But Dewey may find himself under pressures from within his own party to further in "cleaning out Communism in the Government" than he would care to go. He may himself be pressured to act in such a way as to compound present injustices.

A committee of fair-minded citizens of high reputation would be a bulwark against that sort of pressure. Its findings, supported by public opinion, should hold the faculty to quiet hysteria. When the hurly-burly of the campaign is over it will be time for such a move.

Credit Curb Failure Admitted By Federal Reserve Board

By The Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday it hasn't been able to throttle inflationary forces with a 15-month check on credit expansion.

Fed by borrowed money purchases, these forces still dominate the economy and are in position to surge forward, the board's October "bulletin" reported.

In an analysis of bank credit developments, the publication said plenty of customers are ready to spend if they can get credit. The bulletin added that lending resources are plentiful, despite efforts at restraint.

The bulletin came out with the first open expression of concern by Federal authorities over recent heavy selling of Government bonds by insurance companies.

In the last three months, it said, insurance companies alone have sold over a billion dollars in Government bonds, mainly to get funds to lend to businessmen and others.

Control Power Restricted
The Reserve Board has no power to control insurance company lending, although it can restrict the lending capacity of banks.

"This process of shifting out of Government securities results in the creation of bank deposits and bank reserves and is just as inflationary as bank credit expansion," the bulletin commented.

It acknowledged that the Federal Reserve system bought up (P) Senator Dennis Chavez (D., N. Mex.) received blood transfusions today in an Albuquerque hospital where he underwent a major abdominal operation last August.

His physician, Dr. W. R. Lovelace, said he reentered the hospital yesterday for a rest. He said the Senator was "doing very nicely and resting comfortably."

One of the chief critics, Thomas Parkinson of Equitable Life Insurance Co., declared the policy is inflationary.

Price Support Spurs Sale
He and other critics say the reserve system's support of bond prices itself spurs the sale of the bonds and reuse of the funds for other loans, while at the same time keeping interest rates low enough to promote further borrowing.

The bulletin did not debate the point. It acknowledged that by absorbing these bonds from "non-bank investors" the Reserve Board may be increasing reserves for possible bank loans.

"Should sales of Government securities by nonbank investors continue, banks would be able, in the absence of further restraining action, to accommodate a very large loan demand without reducing their own holdings of Government securities," it said.

The bulletin said credit developments have been "an important influence in the continuation of inflationary pressures, notwithstanding some of the acute shortages of goods and the substantial Treasury surplus."

Senator Chavez Gets Blood Transfusions
Albuquerque, N. Mex., Oct. 22 (P) Senator Dennis Chavez (D., N. Mex.) received blood transfusions today in an Albuquerque hospital where he underwent a major abdominal operation last August.

His physician, Dr. W. R. Lovelace, said he reentered the hospital yesterday for a rest. He said the Senator was "doing very nicely and resting comfortably."

Mrs. Meyer Calls for Honesty In Public School Education

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 22 (Sp.)—Need for down-to-earth honesty in education in the Nation's public schools was pointed up here today by Mrs. Eugene Meyer, wife of the chairman of the board of The Washington Post.

Speaking before the Indiana State Teachers Association annual convention, Mrs. Meyer declared:

"The time is gone when teachers should hesitate to criticize our local economic and moral shortcomings in the light of our American ideals."

"Nothing but skepticism is aroused in our pupils if they hear in the classroom has but little relationship to what they see all around them."

She urged that the teacher be made free to "point out that in spite of obvious limitations, the local community, the State and the Nation are struggling valiantly... toward the rectification of the many problems created by our rapid industrial expansion."

Taken for Granted

Mrs. Meyer warned that "to conduct education on so honest a basis takes for granted the close cooperation between the school and the community. The children's families must be drawn into the school orbit so that the school and the parents are not working at cross purposes and that family life may become more stabilized."

Warning that as a by-product of the present educational system "we are getting to be a Nation of clock-watchers," Mrs. Meyer stated:

"If our schools can be accused of laxness, it is because they do not demand enough effort and application from our boys and girls. We are bringing them up in an over-protected and coddled atmosphere where everybody is promoted regardless of achievement, and then we expect them to become happy well-adjusted citizens in a highly competitive economic world. As a result, the adventurous, pioneer spirit of America is being supplanted by a desire for economic security and general well-being without sufficient realization that we cannot spend more than we produce."

"Work is beginning to be looked upon as an evil in our society which everybody should avoid as much as possible."

Mrs. Meyer, who declared teachers must assume a leading role in strengthening the character of young Americans, declared, "Far too long has the layman left the teachers to carry the load of defending and developing our schools."

Shown Up by Strikes
"It took the teacher strikes to wake up the press and radio to the shameful neglect of education. It will now take the carefully organized effort of the laymen and the professional educator on a local, State and national basis if the integration of the schools is to be arrested and education strengthened and equalized without delay."

Speaking of the present world situation, Mrs. Meyer declared:

"We are now in the midst of an era of competing ideologies, of competing systems of government and economic organization. To augment the defense of our country against communism and socialism, it seems to me necessary to teach in our public schools the fundamental differences between our democracy and these foreign ideologies."

"We cannot fight the prolonged 'cold war' with the Soviet Union that lies before us: we cannot maintain the free enterprise system and a decentralized democracy against the overcentralization of power inherent in a socialist state, unless our young people clearly understand the fundamental differences between our two systems."

PAC $71,788 in Red, Financial Report Shows
The CIO's Political Action Committee reported to Congress yesterday it is $71,788 in the red.

A financial statement filed with the House clerk listed contributions of $306,720 and expenses of $378,508 this year. The statement, required by law, covered PAC activities up to October 19.

The PAC is backing President Truman but its report did not list any direct contributions to his campaign.

Also reporting was the National States' Rights Democratic Campaign Committee, which showed a balance of $11,986. It listed contributions of $108,528, and expenses of $96,542 between August 4 and October 20.

The National Republican Congressional Committee reported a balance, too. It had $9087 left on October 20, after receipts of $312,324 and expenses of $306,237.

Dewey's Unity

By Mark Sullivan

Fear Of A Divided Congress

GOVERNOR DEWEY in his campaign speeches has put striking emphasis on unity. Some critics and opponents have described this as part of a campaign devoted to praise of virtuous abstractions. Satirically they say Mr. Dewey is conducting a "sweetness and light" campaign. This, they charge, is an avoidance of concrete and controversial issues. But actually the unity which Mr. Dewey emphasizes is not an abstraction. It is a concrete need and an urgent one.

Mr. Dewey, assuming he becomes President, will have imperative need of unity for dealing with national problems and for success of his Administration. An additional fact justifying Mr. Dewey's stress on unity is that there are conditions which threaten it. One is the possibility that Mr. Dewey as President may find himself with a divided Congress, with a Republican House but a Democratic Senate.

The question over whether the Republicans will control the Senate tends to increase as conditions settle into a pattern in the States in which senatorial elections are doubtful. At present the Republicans have 51 seats, the Democrats 45; a net loss of four seats by the Republicans would enable the Democrats to control. This could happen even though it is fully expected there will be a Republican President and a rather strongly Republican House. It just happens that in the 32 States in which Senators are to be elected there are several which the Republicans are less likely to carry for the Senate than for the Presidency.

CONTROL of one branch of Congress by one party, while the other party controls the other branch and the Presidency, is always awkward. The last example of a Congress thus divided was in the second two years of the Hoover Administration, when the Democrats controlled the House. The condition made it more difficult for Mr. Hoover to get from Congress legislation which he wished and which was greatly needed for the emergency of severe economic depression. So would it now be more difficult for Mr. Dewey to get wished-for legislation if the Democrats should have control of the Senate, including among other leverages of power, the extremely important function of naming the chairmen of committees and the majority of the members.

Recognition of this possibility justifies Mr. Dewey's emphasis on unity as a broad principle. And since he may need support and good-will from Democrats in the Senate, he has his campaign speeches avoids attack upon the party, indeed avoids the spirit of harsh controversy altogether. Some minor Republican leaders think he should, like Mr. Truman, make a fighting campaign. But the key to which Mr. Dewey has set his campaign is a recognition of a national need.

Another possible threat to unity and need of care to assure unity, lies in the relation between Mr. Dewey and Congress, especially the leaders of his party in that body. Put as a question, it is, to what extent will Congress and its leaders defer to the President about proposals for legislation; to what extent will they take responsibility themselves?

Dewey Plays Both Sides, Ickes Claims

Great Falls, Mont., Oct. 22 (P)—

Harold L. Ickes said tonight that Thomas E. Dewey is "a political sleight-of-hand artist" and playing both sides of the fence to capture votes.

In a speech loaded with sarcastic references to the Republican presidential nominee, Ickes declared Dewey claims to be for the Marshall plan and aid to Europe, but "has on his team" every isolationist, every reactionary, that he can find on the Republican side of the Eighteenth Congress.

Ickes, former Secretary of the Interior under the late President Roosevelt and President Truman, said Dewey has been making "pretty speeches," reiterating cries of "unity, unity, unity," "love, love, love," and "team, team, team."

All this, he said, sounds like "The Rover Boys at Yale." But "it doesn't give me one jot, one iota, of information as to what Mr. Dewey plans to do to my country—if he gets the chance," Ickes continued.

Ickes said Dewey "has refused to say whether he is for, or against, publicly owned transmission lines without which there cannot be cheap power."

He declared that in the bill for Large Canyon Ferry power dam in Montana the Republican Congress wrote in a provision which "gave the Montana Power Co. the opportunity to install the power facilities at a public dam." Congress, he said, "requires the Government to build a dam and then, in effect, give it to the power company."

"Under Dewey," he went on, "we may expect the power companies to insist that the Government build the transmission lines to their most convenient substations which will then carry the power at a high cost to the people who have paid for the dam, the powerhouse and the transmission lines."

FCC said "the contest in which Mr. Peddy was engaged was separate and distinct from the one in which Mr. Morris is now engaged" and that any demand for the time by Mr. Morris would have to be based upon time made available to his opponents in the present contest.

FCC Explains Radio Rule on Political Time

The Federal Communications

Commission said yesterday the rule of equal opportunity on the radio for political candidates applied only to candidates for the same office in the same election.

The FCC held that primary and general election campaigns are "separate and distinct contests."

The commission made the statements in announcing that it found no evidence that radio stations KRLD, Dallas, and KWFT, Wichita Falls, Tex., have discriminated against the Rev. Sam Morris, Texas Prohibition Party candidate for the United States Senate.

Mr. Morris recently filed a complaint against KRLD requesting a license revocation proceeding against the station. KWFT, on its own initiative, asked the FCC for a ruling on its obligations in connection with Mr. Morris' request for broadcasting time.

Mr. Morris said that during the Democratic primary campaign in the early summer, George Peddy, an unsuccessful Democratic candidate for the Senate, made a series of broadcasts over KRLD at "choice" time in the early evening. Mr

Thurmond Says Dixiecrats Defend U.S. 'Way of Life'

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 22 (AP).—Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina tonight said the States' Rights Democrats alone stand against "vicious programs designed to destroy the American way of life."

The States' Rights presidential candidate criticized the civil rights programs of President Truman and Governor Dewey in a speech prepared for delivery at a rally here. Thurmond toured across the State from Memphis today and will continue his Tennessee journey to Knoxville Saturday.

The South Carolina Governor also mentioned the Progressive Party presidential candidate, Henry Wallace.

He said:

"Mr. Truman tossed this invidious program (civil rights program) at us because his lieutenants convinced him it was necessary to win the votes of racial minorities in doubtful States. Mr. Dewey eagerly picked it up because, after 10 years of bargaining to the Presidency, he was willing to sponsor anything and everything designed to get votes. And Mr. Wallace, well, everyone knows where his sympathies lie."

Thurmond said States' Rights left the Philadelphia Democratic Convention "not in a spirit of hopelessness, but in a spirit of defiance to those who had seized control of our party."

Snyder Sees U.S. 1.5 Billion in Red, Blames Congress

Los Angeles, Oct. 22 (AP).—Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder today said Uncle Sam is running $1,500,000 in the red this year and that Congress is to blame.

Snyder, in town for a series of talks, said in a news conference:

"The Administration balanced the budget in 1947 and 1948. But we will have an operation deficit of a billion and a half for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1949. This is due to the revised budget after Congress had cut taxes and made additional appropriations."

He said tax cuts should have come after the budget is balanced and something paid on the national debt.

"In prosperous times such as these we certainly should live within our means."

Mindscenty Assailed

Budapest, Hungary, Oct. 22 (AP).—Hungary's Communist-dominated cabinet today accused Joseph Cardinal Mindscenty of aiding "foreign imperialists" by meddling in official matters, and warned that "the government will not tolerate" such actions.

Austin Assails 'Sideshow' of House Probers

Conduct of the House Un-American Activities Committee was severely criticized yesterday by F. Byrnes Austin, Democratic candidate opposing Representative J. Glenn Ball (R., Md.) in the November 2 election.

"I think congressional committees must be given means of investigating activities which may endanger our country," Austin told the Montgomery County League of Women Voters meeting in Rockville Presbyterian Church.

"But," he said, "I deplore the sideshow tactics and trial-by-publicity that has been hatched by the Republican Un-American Activities Committee under Chairman Thomas."

Austin accused his opponent of voting to weaken rent control, and voting for tax reduction, which he said interfered with lowering the national debt and endangered European recovery.

The candidate said he served no special interests or groups, and supported repeal of the oleo tax. Federal aid to education and international reconstruction and expansion of world trade.

"I am pledged to the Democratic platform of 1948," Austin declared. "It spells out my beliefs by item, simply and specifically."

Warren said the Republicans weren't attempting to blame all the Nation's problems on the other party, and implied the Democrats were doing just that.

"This is no time to spread bitterness," he said. "Anyone who tries to divide us is doing a tremendous disservice to our country."

"I would rather lose this election than do anything of that kind."

The Republican candidate chose a downtown park to open his bid for California's 25 electoral votes.

The speech was billed as a "campaign report" on trips outside the State, including his 31-day tour of the Nation.

The Gallup Poll

Man in Street Picks Dewey To Win Presidential Election

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 22.—It has been a long time since a survey of millions of voters indicated a great victory for Alfred M. Landon, the Republican candidate, John Q. Public was wholly unimpressed and said President Roosevelt would win hands down.

In 1940, even though the election results were much closer, there was never a time during the campaign that a majority of voters believed the Republican, Wendell L. Willkie, would defeat Roosevelt.

With an even closer race in 1944, 7 out of 10 said Roosevelt would win over Dewey.

And now in 1948 the public by a ratio of 2 to 1 predicts that Governor Dewey will go to the White House.

More than 8 out of 10 Dewey supporters think he will be elected, while Truman voters pick the President by a ratio of 2 to 1.

One out of eight Wallace followers with opinions believe the Progressive candidate will win the Presidency, although most Wallace voters select Dewey. One out of eight Dixiecrat voters are betting that their candidate, J. Strom Thurmond will be the next President.

Revercomb Mailing Pleas To 200,000

By The Associated Press

The Senate caucus room was turned over yesterday to a big mailing room on behalf of the senatorial campaign of Senator Revercomb (R., W. Va.).

The room was occupied by about 15 employees of the Senate folding room, and part-time workers inserting Revercomb campaign literature in envelopes for mailing.

William A. Stevens, Public Works Committee clerk working in Revercomb's office, estimated to reporters that the literature is going out to 200,000 West Virginians.

He said the addresses were obtained from letters of everyone in the State who had written the Senator in the past six years.

Stevens said Revercomb will pay the wages of all the persons employed.

Stevens said the material is being mailed in postage-free envelopes bearing the Senator's frank.

Folding room employees said from 15 to 25 persons have been at work steadily for the past two days, expecting to complete the work last night.

Revercomb is opposed for a second term by Matthew M. Neely, former Governor and Senator, in one of the contests which political observers say may decide which party wins control of the next Senate.

Dewey Hits Use of Abuse

he will make several train platform talks in Massachusetts. Friday he was scheduled to make speeches in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut on his way back to New York.

His schedule ruled out the possibility that he might give any last-minute help to Senator Revercomb, West Virginia Republican who disagreed with Dewey on the displaced persons bill.

Dewey had a head cold today and told supporters at the rally that it was so bad he couldn't hear himself speak.

James Haggerty, the Governor's executive assistant, told reporters Dewey has been running a slight temperature for the past few days.

Meanwhile, before returning to Albany tonight, the Governor reaffirmed his approval of the United Nations proposal for the partition of Palestine.

In a letter to Dean Alfange, chairman of the American Christian Palestine Committee of New York, Dewey noted that in accepting the Republican presidential nomination he had given his "wholehearted" support to the Republican platform which welcomed Israel "into the family of nations," and criticized "the vacillation of the Democratic Administration" on the Palestine issue.

"My position today is the same," Dewey said.

Alfange had written the New York Governor, observing that at this time, "when the fate of Israel is at stake," a reaffirmation by Dewey of the platform pledge would be welcomed.

Missionary From D. C. Wounded in Burma

Rangoon, Burma, Oct. 22 (AP).—An American missionary was wounded yesterday when Burmese rebels fired on a river boat near Rangoon, an American source reported today.

John S. Hamal, whose address was given as Washington, D. C., the wounded man, is attached to the Seventh-Day Adventist Mission hospital here, and is reported progressing.

Hamal received his overseas assignment from the General Conference of Seventh-Day Adventists in Washington, it was learned. He was reported to be from Candy, Oreg., and has been in charge of the sale of mission books in Rangoon.

3 Milk Firms, 4 Individuals Fined $27,500 for Price Plot

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 22 (AP).—Three milk companies and four individuals were fined a total of $27,500 in District Federal Court here today on charges of conspiring to fix milk prices.

Charges against five other companies and two individuals were dismissed.

Fines of $5000 each were placed against Milk for Health, Inc., Ewing-Von Allman Dairy Co., Oscar Ewing, Inc., and Emory A. Marple, partner in Model Farms Dairy.

Fines of $2500 each were assessed against Fred T. Flynn, secretary of Milk for Health, Inc.; John H. Stark, director and president of Ewing-Von Allman Dairy Co., and Charles O. Ewing, Jr., president and director of Oscar Ewing, Inc.

Individuals fined and the amounts were: Neil L. Fleming, Pittsburgh Plate, $3000; David Eichelberger, American-Marietta, $2000; Joseph Esposito, Interchemical, $3500; Elliott Phillips Devoe, $3000; C. S. Beaver, American-Marietta, $1000; R. D. Sullivan, vice president of General Paint $1000.

5 Paint Firms Fined For Price Conspiracy

Pittsburgh, Oct. 22 (AP).—Five major paint and varnish firms were fined a total of $30,000 in Federal District Court today after pleading no contest to charges of antitrust violations by conspiring to fix prices.

Six officers of the companies were fined a total of $12,500 by

36 Ex-New Dealers Call Wallace Party 'Totalitarian'

Thirty-six former members of the Roosevelt New Deal last night denounced Henry A. Wallace's Progressive Party as a "totalitarian" attempt to destroy American liberalism and called for the election of President Truman.

In a statement issued by the anti-Communist liberal group, Americans for Democratic Action, they described the Wallace Party as a "reputation of the methods and purposes of Franklin D. Roosevelt" and a "major effort to break up the liberal-labor coalition which brought about the great gains of the past 15 years."

Among those signing the statement were former Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, former Attorney General Francis Biddle, former Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson, former OPA Administrator Leon Henderson, and former Roosevelt advisers Thomas G. Corcoran and Samuel I. Rosenman.

Ryland Church To Mark 105th Year

Events marking the 105th anniversary of Ryland Methodist Church, Branch Ave. and S. St. se., will be presented on Wednesday, October 23, at 8 p. m. The celebration will begin at 11 a. m. Sunday when the Rev. Karl G. Newell, pastor in 1935-1943, will speak at the anniversary service. At 7:30 p. m. the speaker will be from the Christian Businessmen's Committee, which has been meeting at the Mayflower Hotel during the past week. The Rev. Dr. Benjamin W. Meeks, minister of the church from 1909 to 1911, will speak at an anniversary fellowship banquet at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday. On Thursday, October 24, at 8 p. m., Mendelsohn's orchestra will be presented on records in the church auditorium. The week-long celebration will be concluded next Sunday with an "old-timers service" at 11 a. m. and a Reformation Day service at 7:30 p. m. Ryland Church was founded on October 24, 1843. The first building, constructed by members themselves, was completed the following year. The original church was at 10th and D sts. sw. For 96 years members of the church worshiped at the south-west Washington site.

Religious Book Week to Open Tomorrow

Religious Book Week, sponsored for the past six years by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, will open Sunday.

Committees representing the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths have selected 35 books as recommended reading for adults and children in each religious group. An additional list of 35 "good will" titles was compiled by an interreligious committee to create better mutual understanding.

Included are classical works and modern fiction, biography, history, philosophy and poetry. In observance of the week, the local committee of the National Conference of Christians and Jews will distribute 10,000 book marks to libraries, schools and book stores. Special displays are also to be featured in book stores and libraries.

The Library of Congress will show a hand-executed fourteenth century Bible as its "exhibit of the week" today through Friday. The two-volume book, known as the Bible of Count Demeter Nekeseliop, has been described by library officials as one of the "handsomest and most artistically wrought of the medieval manuscripts in the library."

'Secret of Presence' To Be Sermon Topic

Sunday Church Events

One hundred years after the installation of its first organ, St. John's Episcopal Church, 3240 O st. nw., will celebrate the dedication of a modern and completely rebuilt organ.

The service of dedication will be conducted by the Rev. William MacD. Sharp, rector of the church, and a special musical program will be presented. The first organ in St. John's was put in the gallery so that "the movements of the organist and chorists might not disturb the meditations of the congregation," according to an old record.

"How We Can Help America" is the subject of the first in a series of sermons to be delivered by Dr. Seth R. Brooks at 11 a. m. at the Universalist National Memorial Church, 1810 16th st. nw. Topics for future Sundays are "How We Can Help Our Church," "How We Can Help Others," and "How We Can Help Ourselves."

Baptism of infants will take place at 11 a. m. at John Wesley A. M. E. Zion Church, 14th and Corcoran sts. nw. Dr. Stephen Gill Spottwood will preach at the service and at Holy Communion at 8 p. m.

Speakers at Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas cir., will interpret the recent convention of the United Lutheran Church in America at the morning service. At 9:45 a. m. the Rev. James M. Slinger, assistant pastor, and Dr. James M. Westby, lay leader of the congregation, will speak. Dr. L. Ralph Tabor, pastor, will preach, and brief talks will be made by Ralph Keister and Carson G. Sears to Open Fifth Store in Silver Spring

By S. Oliver Goodman

Sears, Roebuck & Co. has completed arrangements to open a retail department store in nearby Silver Spring, according to H. K. Duffield, Sears general manager in this area.

The new store will be located at 8423 Conover rd., on the west side of Georgia ave. at the corner of Ramsey and Duffield. The store will be a two-story building, and will be designed "that it will be possible to make future physical expansion as needed." The store is expected to be ready for business by the fall of 1949 and will be Sears' fifth retail outlet in this area.

The Federal Reserve Board reported last night that industrial production held in September to the same level as in August, slightly below the peak-time record of last February.

The board's seasonally adjusted index showed September industrial output was maintained at 91 per cent above the 1935-39 average, duplicating the August figure. The February record was 94 per cent above prewar.

Manufacturing output showed a small gain in September, rising to 98 per cent above—or almost double—the prewar figure.

Summarizing business conditions throughout the Nation, the board said:

"Value of department store sales in September and the early part of October showed about the usual seasonal increase. Prices of foods declined from earlier record levels, while prices of most other commodities showed little change."

Discussing credit developments, the board said business loans at banks in leading cities in September and the first of October, while real estate and consumer loans also continued to rise.

Television to Gain At Radio Expense, FCC Head Thinks
New York, Oct. 22 (U.P.)—Chairman Wayne Coy of the Federal Communications Commission predicted today that television's future revenue and audience would be gained largely at radio's expense.

Addressing the Radio Executives Club of New York, Coy said he did not think television would destroy radio broadcasting.

But, he declared, "broadcasters dare not bury their heads in the sand and sell themselves with the notion that television will get its economic support from advertising dollars heretofore spent in newspapers, magazines and billboards."

Sound broadcasting, he continued, will continue to be the main support of television for some time. But he said the practical problems of radio or in television—not both, he said, operating two different competing with each other.

Comphasizing he spoke as an individual, forecast a total of 1000 television stations in the next seven or eight years. But he said he doubted there ever would be as many television stations as there are radio stations now.

Two Oil Firms Stand Pat On Crude Price Increase
Amarillo, Tex., Oct. 22 (U.P.)—J. H. Dunn, president of the Shamrock Oil & Gas Corp., said today that his firm has no intention of backing up on a 35 cents per barrel crude oil price hike.

Shamrock followed Phillips Petroleum in the increase. Phillips repeated its stand of maintaining the increase today.

Shamrock bought about 5500 barrels of crude a day.

Little Hoyas Romp Over St. Albans

By Howard Fieger

Georgetown Prep triumphed, 33-6, over St. Albans, yesterday, on the losers' field. It was undefeated Prep's fourth win.

Prep scored two touchdowns in the first quarter on drives starting from its 30 and 40. Bob O'Donnell bucked over from the 2 for the first touchdown, and Jude O'Donnell (the relation) scored the second on a pass from Ed Claxton on the Saint's 20.

St. Albans Scores on Pass
St. Albans scored its only touchdown a few plays later when Bob Hubbel, on his 48, tossed to Walt Leach who went over from the 19.

The Little Hoyas bounced right back in the second quarter to add two more touchdowns. Bill Bidwell drove over from the 2 and Jude O'Donnell dashed around right end from the 1-yard line. Half-time score, 27-6.

Georgetown Scores Again
Georgetown made one more touchdown in the final quarter as Claxton completed two passes to Judge O'Donnell who moved to the Saint's 2. Claxton drove for the final touchdown on a quarterback sneak. Final score, 33-6.

St. Albans fought a game battle against overpowering weight and fancy deception from the Little Hoyas' "T" formation. The Saints managed only one drive, other than its lone touchdown play, that penetrated to the Prep's 26, where George Valios intercepted Roger Kingsbury's pass. Georgetown meets Loyola in Baltimore next week.

to be a battle," he proclaimed. Asked what he thought was the significance, if any, of yesterday's disclosure that Paul Brown intends to resign as coach of the Cleveland Browns of the All-America Conference after the present season and seek a college job, Thompson said:

"Brown is a very smart coach. He's proved that. I think he just sees the handwriting on the wall and is getting out while he's on top."

"I talked with Brown here two years ago. At that time he agreed that what I was trying to do—get the two leagues together on the draft and other matters—was the only thing that would permit both to continue operating. Now that he knows it has fallen through, I think he feels it is time to get out."

Sherwood Beats NTS,
18-7, for First Victory

Sherwood High broke into the A column after three tries with a 18-7 victory over National Training School yesterday at NTS. Joel Lacy and Arthur Carr scored of the touchdowns on short hucks. Frank Ripley tossed 15-yard pass to Rip Stabler for the other Sherwood score.

Other major Midwestern encounters include such intersection struggles at Nevada at Tulsa, Kentucky at Marquette and Temple Oklahoma A. and M.

In the East, where the list of four all-victorious teams is bound to be denied, Ivy League competition finds Princeton at Columbia and Dartmouth at Harvard. Intercollegiate scuffles have Vanderbilt Yale, Indiana at Pittsburgh and Illinois and Mary at St. Bonaventure, while Colgate goes to Holy Cross and Connecticut to Brown.

About the nearest thing to an actual match in the South is Alabama's invasion of Mississippi State. Other Dixie powers, like North Carolina and Georgia Tech, are teams that are hard to play.

Mitchell, Burt Lead Indians

By Herb Heft

Post Reporter

On the strength of a steam-roller ground attack, Anacostia's Indians drove into undisputed possession of Interhigh football's second place with a 25-7 victory over Wodrow Wilson yesterday at Anacostia Stadium.

Edward (Bama) Burt and Bob Mitchell were the workhorses of the Indians' attack, setting up all the touchdowns. Then within striking distance they befuddled the Green Tigers twice by giving the scoring play assignments to Bill Butler.

Wilson didn't hit the scoring lanes until the last five minutes. Then, with Anacostia on top, 25-0, Tiger Halfback Leo Speros untied the game.

Seeking their third victory in the series, the Indians took control the first time they got their hands on the ball. They had to punt only once, and were stopped inside Wilson's 15 three times.

Anacostia's first scoring thrust in the opening moments was a 72-yard march with Burt doing most of the running. When the drive reached the Wilson 10, Burt handed off to Butler who ran through right guard for the score. Bob Mitchell converted.

Leo Kerschbaum intercepted a Speros pass two minutes later on the Wilson 45. Two plays later, Mitchell sprinted 40 yards around right end for a touchdown.

Burt Gets This One
Anacostia's next drive covered 94 yards in 10 land plays with Burt and Mitchell alternating. It was Burt's turn with the ball on Wilson's 4, and he crashed over right tackle to score.

Center Bob Morris intercepted another Speros arrow in the fourth period to set up the final Anacostia touchdown. Three plays later, Mitchell handed off to Butler, who circled left end for 6 yards to score.

GAIN FOR WILSON—Bob Rieley of Wilson rips off a long gain around Anacostia's end in yesterday's Interhigh League game at Anacostia. Ted Britton, Anacostia tackle, just misses the tackle as he throws Rieley off stride and Rieley was driven out of bounds. Anacostia won the game, 25-7, to take over undisputed possession of second place.

St. John's Holds Central to 19-19 Tie

Coolidge Wins, 13-12

By Billy Gilbert

Coolidge's Colts halted a Roosevelt drive on their own 9-yard line and then drove 91 yards for the decisive score as they eked out a 13-12 win over Roosevelt before 2000 fans at Wilson Stadium yesterday.

It was the first victory of the year for Coolidge. The Colts scored on a 19-yard drive led by Dick Heishman. Late in the fourth quarter, leading 12-7, the Rough Riders took a Colt punt and marched from their own 35 to the Coolidge 13.

The biggest gain in this drive was a 40-yard effort by Dick Heishman. However, four plays netted only 5 yards and Coolidge took over.

They drove across the goal without losing the ball, with the running duties being divided between Benny Duvall, Jack Brozman, and Dan Richardson. The drive was climaxed when Duvall passed to Ed Billy Horan, who made a circus catch of the ball on the 10 and trotted over.

In the initial period the Colts scored the first time they got their hands on the ball. They started from their own 48. Walter Krukowski set up the tally on a 31-yard jaunt around end to the 1. Duvall plowed over on the next play. Jack Brozman ran over for the conversion.

Roosevelt scored in the same quarter as Heishman ran off the Colts' left guard for 56 yards to pay dirt. His kick was low.

The Rough Riders went ahead in the second period when Heishman passed to Weaver Merriam in the end zone. Again his kick was low.

Pantos, Waldron, Cardaci Injured In Game Marked by Rough Play

By Don Lief

The lightly regarded Cadets of St. John's battled Central's favored Vikings to a 19-19 tie yesterday at Central Stadium before 2000 amazed fans.

Ferocious tackling marked the game and in the fourth period Central's Jimmy Pantos was carried off the field as were St. John's stars Dannie Waldron and Joe Cardaci. They were thoroughly shaken up but not injured.

The Vikings showed their strength in the first period when they moved from their 35 to the Cadet 28. Pantos then passed to Franny Gleason on the 1, Gleason making a shoe-string catch. Jack Wirt vaulted the line for the score and Pantos converted.

Pantos' fumble of a Wirt lateral gave the Johnnies a break in the second period. Recovering the ball on the Vikings' 15, the Cadets rammed over for the score, with Dannie Waldron banging the ball to the 1 and Bunny Wallace hurrying over. Don Swillick then converted what could have been the winning point; however, a holding penalty nullified the play and Waldron's ensuing attempt to pass the point was incomplete.

Central roared back in just two plays. Pantos took Swillick's kickoff on the 25, raced to the Johnnies' 47, and on the first play from scrimmage passed to Bill Dunker who caught the ball on the 10 and galloped into the end zone. Pantos' kick was wide.

Dannie Waldron was the spark in a Johnnie drive of 74 yards, climaxed by Wallace's 8-yard pass to Jack Daly in the end zone, making the score 13-12 in the third period.

C&P Plans To Maintain Present Pay

Official Indicates It Will Not Reopen Negotiations Until Contract Expires

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. will maintain its present wage rates if union rejection of wage increase offers for 6300 employees is final, a company official said yesterday.

Final offers by the company were rejected by Division 50, Communications Workers of America, representing operators and clerical workers, and by Division 36, CWA, for plant, accounting and commercial employees.

While the statement, made by F. G. Macarow, vice president and general manager of the company, indicated the firm will not reopen wage negotiations before May, when present contracts expire, Glenn E. Watts, vice president of Division 36, said he had advised the company there was still "an area for negotiation."

Macarow said "our final offers to the union provided for weekly increases of $2 to $4 for operators and clerical employees and $2 to $6 boosts for craft employees. Both unions rejected our offers and the period for bargaining expired at midnight October 14, with no agreement reached."

Watts, who said the company offer ranged from $1 up instead of $2, for craft employees, declared "we don't propose to sit around waiting until May, 1949." He suggested a settlement reached by the Illinois Bell Telephone Co. with 11,000 traffic department workers might be used as a pattern here.

"The three-year contracts can be terminated by either party on or after May 15, 1949, in the case of the traffic union, and May 21, 1949, in the case of the union representing the other departments," Macarow said, "or the unions may exercise their right under a provision of the contracts which permits a second reopening at any time for consideration of basic wage rates."

Meanwhile, the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of Baltimore City announced agreement with the Maryland Traffic Union (CIO), providing for pay increases ranging from $1 to $4 a week for 4000 employees.

The agreement, covering an 18-month period, is subject to ratification by the union membership. The company is still negotiating with the Independent Maryland Federation of Telephone Workers, representing about 2700 craft employees.

3 Polio Cases Bring Area Total to 224

Three new polio cases, including two where other children of the family already are hospitalized with the disease, were reported in Greater Washington yesterday.

At Children's Hospital, an 8-year-old yesterday joined her 4-year-old sister, who was admitted Tuesday. Both girls, from Dunn Loring, Va., were reported in "satisfactory" condition.

A 4½-year-old boy from the 4500 block of Blue Plains rd. sw., yesterday entered Children's, where his 17-month-old brother had been admitted with the same disease on Monday. Both were in "satisfactory" condition, the hospital reported.

The other case was a 10-month-old boy from the 1100 block of 5th st. sw., who was admitted to Freedmen's Hospital on Monday. This was the first case this year at Freedmen's.

The new cases raised the Greater Washington total to 224. This includes 116 District cases and 108 in nearby Virginia and Maryland. The area total for this date last year was 47 cases.

Plan Blood Program

Plans for a blood donor program will be formulated by District government workers at a meeting Monday in the board room of the District Building at 10 a. m. Department heads will meet with John Trumbull, director of public welfare, who will be in charge of the program.

Fortune Telling at Janney Jamboree...

WHAT DO THE CARDS SAY?—Sandra Weinstein, 10, a fifth-grade student at the Janney School, asks the fortune-teller whether she will get a passing grade this semester. Mrs. Esther Leibel, a play school teacher, who sought the answer in the cards yesterday at Janney School's fall jamboree, needed a crystal ball. The "seer" was one of many attractions at the carnival, staged at the school, Wisconsin ave. and Albemarle st. nw.

Buzzard Point Bus Petition Signed by 600

Resident of Boatyard Heads 20 Persons at Hearing on Extension

The District Public Utilities Commission held an informal hearing yesterday on a request by residents of the Buzzard Point area south of P st. sw., for extension of Capital Transit Co. bus service.

Stephen P. Frink, who lives on a boat anchored in the Buzzard Point boatyard, led a group of 20 residents who spoke in favor of lengthening the present V-2 bus line to V st.

This would accommodate the residents, sailing enthusiasts, and workers in the area, who now are without bus service, he said. The largest group consists of the residents of the Syphax Mobile Homes, a part of the Anthony Bowen Houses, National Capital Housing Authority project.

Frink submitted a petition signed by 600 persons asking for the service. He said similar requests have been made to the Capital Transit Co. for three years with no effect.

Deane J. Locke, staff engineer for CTC, opposed the bus route extension, contending that residents were within walking distance of present terminals. He added that rush-hour service is now run for War Department workers in three large warehouses in the area and the request would involve addition of four buses and five operators at a cost of $42,000 a year.

Frink and Walter Washington, project manager at the Bowen Houses, contended that present bus service could make the extended trips in their layover time.

James H. Flanagan, PUC chairman, directed the CTC to study the cost of extending the present line to various lengths in the area and to supply information on layover times for consideration by the board next week.

Crosstown Buses Begin Longer Runs Sunday

Crosstown bus service linking the upper Northwest and Northeast sections of the city by an extension of the M-2, Military rd., line will begin operating Sunday, Capital Transit Co. officials announced yesterday.

The M-2 line, which now terminates at 14th, and Colorado ave. nw., will be extended to Ivy City, 16th st. and West Virginia ave. ne., it was announced. The officials said the crosstown line will provide connections with lines north and west of Bladensburg rd.

From the present Colorado ave. terminal, the line will travel by way of Kennedy st., Missouri ave. N. Capitol st., Hawaii ave., Taylor st., South Dakota ave., 18th st., Montana ave., New York ave., 16th st., to West Virginia ave. and along West Virginia ave. to Montana ave. ne.

Also announced was the addition, beginning Monday, of another trip during morning rush hours on Route S-9, Silver Spring express, to downtown Washington, leaving at 7:15 a. m.

2 Men Injured As Autos Collide On Route 240

Two men were injured at about 8:30 p. m. yesterday when their cars collided on Route 240, about a mile north of Garrett Park rd.

Taken to Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, were Carl J. Eitner, 26, of Rockville, with a possible fractured right leg and face lacerations, and John P. Lacy, 29, of 5517 Southwest st., Bethesda, with a possible fractured skull and scalp lacerations.

Police said Eitner and Lacy were driving in opposite directions.

Sings Sunday Miss Traubel Holds Court Hilariously

By Paul Hume

Helen Traubel took over the suite bearing her name at the Raleigh Hotel yesterday and held court in hilarious style.

The instant the door opened, the Traubel laugh (one of the best known laughs in the country thanks to Duffy's Tavern) rang through the hall. Speaking of appearing with Duffy's, Miss Traubel said she is to be on the Fred Allen show on November 14. "I'm scared to death of what he may do," she said.

The Wagnerian star of the Metropolitan Opera is appearing here Sunday afternoon with the National Symphony Orchestra. Last season the Met introduced some rather revolutionary new sets for Wagner's Ring cycle. Miss Traubel said yesterday, "Speaking for myself, I like the new sets. But the day Lauritz Melchior and I went to our first rehearsal on the new sets, he took me over to a setting supposed to be the Rhine."

"Helen," said Melchior, "that's not the Rhine. 'It isn't,' said the St. Louis diva, 'well, what is it?'" "It's the Yellowstone Canyon," said Melchior. And out came the Traubel laugh again. Miss Traubel owns one of the most sizable voices in captivity, and practicing during her around-the-country appearances can be a problem.

At the Raleigh, according to Carl Schiffer, manager of the hotel, and a singer of distinction himself, "they put the soprano and tenors on the side of the house where the elevators can drop them out. At that, Miss Traubel replied, 'all I can say is you've got some elevators.'"

On Sunday afternoon's concert, the noted soprano will sing arias by Gluck and Wagner. She also hinted how she happened to turn down offers early in her singing career in order to study longer before making her New York debut, she said, "Well, some people said I must have a screw loose, and I guess I did. But all the time I kept wanting to sing better and better until one day I decided if I was ever going to sing in New York I had better do it."

America's first native-trained soprano to crash the big Wagner repertoire at the Met was as surprised as foreign visitors to Washington at the lack of adequate concert and opera facilities here. But until an opera house is built here, the only way Washington will hear Miss Traubel in Wagner will be in such concerts as Sunday's National Symphony program.

3 in Stolen Car Flee on Foot After Trying to Flee Cop

Two men and a woman tried to run down a motorcycle patrolman with a stolen automobile late yesterday and then escaped on foot as the officer fired at them.

Patrolman Robert A. Eldridge said he stopped the car in the 4200 block Benning rd. ne., after it had been speeding. When the driver produced a driver's permit but no registration card, Eldridge ordered him to follow his motorcycle to Fourteenth Precinct station.

Eldridge said he swerved to the left when the driver tried to run into him from the rear as they approached A st. se. The automobile turned right on A st., but stalled on a boulder at the dead end of a block away.

The occupants ran into a nearby wooded area and escaped after Eldridge fired once at the driver.

Microbiology Unit Set Up At Bethesda

Dr. Victor B. Haas Heads Institute Combining 5 Others

Establishment of a microbiological institute within the National Institute of Health, Bethesda, Md., was announced yesterday by Assistant Surgeon General R. E. Dyer, of United States Public Health Service.

Creation of the new unit out of existing projects at NIH raises to five the number of institutes and completes an extensive realignment of medical research there, the announcement said.

The microbiological institute is headed by Dr. Victor B. Haas, formerly chief of a unit engaged in malaria research for the National Institute of Health in cooperation with the University of Tennessee Medical School, Memphis, Tenn.

The reorganization groups together such former divisions as those working on infectious diseases, tropical medicine and biological control into one organization of institute status. Others are the National Heart Institute, National Institute of Dental Research, National Cancer Institute, and the Experimental Biology and Medicine Institute.

Dr. Haas, appointed director of the Microbiological Institute by Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele, is a native of Cincinnati. He received his medical degree from the University of Cincinnati in 1932, and was commissioned the same year as an assistant surgeon in Public Health Service.

In World War II he was assigned by Public Health Service as chief of the medical commission for the Yunnan-Burma Railway. Later he was placed in charge of planning and disposition of medical forces in the construction of the Stilwell Road from Burma to India. For his service on this project he was awarded the Legion of Merit.

Dr. Haas directed malaria research for Public Health Service on his return from overseas duty, and last year was made chief, division on malaria, Division of Tropical Diseases, National Institutes of Health.

'Bunions On His Union'

G. Verdi's 'Rigoletto' Sung Here as It Never Was Before

"Rigoletto," by a well-known Italian songwriter called Giuseppe Verdi, was sung at Constitution Hall last night as it never was sung before.

Rendering Mister Verdi's high classic before a crowd of more than 3500 persons was a group programmed as the Cosmopolitan Opera Quartet, who sang succinctly if not sweetly.

Mister Verdi, incidentally, was heard to spin in his grave, fortissimo, as the soloists, also alias the Antlers of Fiat, Mich., slightly repurchased the libretto to rise to such heights, as quote:

"I'll raise a bunion. On his Spanish onion."

No mention was made on either the program or backstage of a nearby grill how or through what special musicianship, if any, the Spanish element came to pass in the aforementioned number.

The concert, sponsored by the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc. (District of Columbia Chapter, that is), was billed as Harvest of Harmony. And there were other artists rendering all kinds of hemidemisemiquavers as it were, besides the Flint Antlers.

Falls Church Council Votes Tax Boost

Tentative Budget Of $265,485 Calls For 30-Ct. Hike In Rate on Property

Falls Church City Council last night approved a tentative budget of $265,485 calling for a 30-cent increase in the property tax rate.

The budget will now be advertised for 30 days prior to a public hearing November 29. It will then be formally adopted by the council.

The budget was tentatively adopted with only minor amendments, despite one councilman's objection to the possible increase.

Councilman Jack Eakin protested that city taxes under the proposed boost would go "out of sight" and questioned the wisdom of the increase.

However, Councilman Lee M. Rhoads declared that if the town does not accept the increase "we're not going to have the taxes to provide the services the people should have."

The council last night was studying the proposed $265,485 new budget preparatory to advertising it for 30 days and for holding a public hearing before finally adopting it.

Samuel Dennis, a member of the council's finance committee, estimated the 30-cent tax increase—from $1.50 to $1.80 per $100 of property valuation—would bring approximately $15,000 more annually.

This amount, it was pointed out, is roughly equivalent to the sum earmarked in the tentative budget for an annexation survey of nearby Fairfax County land.

Bride of Terp Wife Chosen As Queen for Homecoming

A comely coed with a handsome husband last night became George Washington University's Homecoming Queen for 1948.

Before more than 2000 students and alumni at the university's annual reunion and pep rally, the judges selected Mrs. Lois Anne Brackett, 19, of Sigma Kappa sorority, as the queen.

Mrs. Brackett, picked with difficulty from 15 other talented and beautiful coeds, was crowned queen by Dr. Alexander Wetmore, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution and president of the alumni association.

A junior majoring in sociology, the new queen is married to Harry Brackett, a University of Maryland aeronautical engineering student. They live at 6 E. Nelson dr., Alexandria.

Last night's event, held in Lister Auditorium, preceded a day-long series of activities for today. With all Saturday classes canceled, students intend to make the most of it beginning with early alumni breakfasts and coffee hours.

A 60-foot parade will form on the campus at 1 p. m. to proceed to Griffith Stadium, where the George Washington football team will meet the University of Maryland for the homecoming game.

Climax of the day, the homecoming ball, will be held at Uline Arena from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m. with Jimmy Dorsey providing the music.

3 Sentenced To Prison in Slaying Here

Three men were sentenced in District Court yesterday for recent slayings here.

Manuel R. Galloway, 44, of 1031 Lamont st. nw., was given 5 to 15 years for manslaughter in the ice-pick slaying of Carl Crawford, 41, of 1034 Kenyon st. nw. in July.

Luther Cunningham, 24, of 64 Defrees st. nw., was given 5 to 15 years for manslaughter in the fatal shooting of John H. Faggin, 34, of 734 Balls ct. nw.

James Brown, 27, of 1736 13th st. nw., who was found guilty of second degree murder in the slaying of Righter Carter, 33, of 1465 Swann st. nw., was given 5 to 20 years.

A two to six-year sentence was given Amos Williams, 25, of New York for attempted pocketbook snatching.

Alonso E. Beasley, 26, of 835 French st. nw., was given three to nine years for the $50 yoke robbery of John A. Hoover, 1107 Harvard st. nw.

Four gamblers here escaped jail terms after pleading guilty. Charged with setting up a gambling table for horse betting, Frank E. Baker, 41, of 3411 14th st. nw., was given a $300 fine.

Leroy Jamison, 39, of 2117 10th st. nw., was given three years probation for numbers writing.

Two men charged with running a "cut" poker game, were given two years probation each. They are John Baskett, 32, of 1612 11th st. nw., and Hilton L. Reddick, 35, of 1811 H pl. nw.

Parents of Marine Hold Key To Girl's Jail-to-Altar Plans

BESSIE (DIMPLES) NICHOLS Marriage must wait

Bessie (Dimples) Nichols plans for a quick trip from the Prince Georges County Jail to the altar ran into a temporary roadblock yesterday.

The shapely, 17-year-old blonde, who wants to marry Marine Pfc. Quincy F. Perry while she waits for trial in the county's Circuit Court on a seven-count robbery indictment, learned the wedding will have to wait formal approval of Perry's parents, who live on a ranch "somewhere in Colorado."

Perry, who came to Marlboro from his station at Norfolk, Va., to place a diamond engagement ring on her finger, Thursday, is only 19 years of age. Under Maryland law, he must have signed permission of his parents to obtain a marriage license.

Court officials, who have openly approved the marriage proposal as a possible means of "settling Bessie down," yesterday offered to assist Perry in preparing papers required by the marriage license bureau. They probably will be mailed to the youth's parents today.

Bessie's mother, who lives in Rockville, has already given her official blessing, according to County Parole Officer Roy Bright. Meanwhile, Bessie was arraigned on the robbery charges in the Circuit Court yesterday and entered a plea of not guilty. No date was set for the trial.

State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie, who indicated Thursday he would ask for leniency if the marriage goes through, would commit himself no further following her arraignment before Judge John B. Gray, Jr. However, he commented, "I don't have to bring the case to trial if I don't want to."

Bessie's troubles with the law began last November, the court charges, when she accompanied two youths in a taxicab to Brandywine, Md. There her companions held up the driver, took his cash and money and fled to Virginia. Arrested in Virginia, she was returned to Marlboro, but escaped from the jail last March, when someone smuggled her a duplicate cell key.

She met Perry four months ago in California, where she landed after a cross-country hitch-hiking trip.

Prince Georges To Unveil New D. C. Entrance

Lane, Sasser to Talk 'Beautified' Crossing

Prince Georges County will celebrate the formal opening of its first "beautified" entrance to the District at Queens Chapel rd. and Eastern ave. in ceremonies at 7:30 p. m. today.

The road at the three-way intersection has been widened, traffic has been channeled in double lanes, and a loop on the west side now allows easier turning facilities for buses. In addition, $74,000 has been spent in construction of La Salle rd. connecting the intersection with Chillum rd.

Eight similar projects at entrances to the District are planned as part of the county's 10-year improvement program, begun in 1946.

Speakers at today's celebration, whose theme is "Grow With Prince Georges," will include Gov. William Preston Lane, Jr., of Maryland, and Representative Lansdale G. Sasser (D., Md.). Toastmaster will be E. Harold Sotheron, president of the Maryland State Senate, and judges and county officials will round out the guest list.

Music will be provided by the Washington Gas Light Band, the Justin Lawrie Singers, the Queens Chapel Quartet, and the LaSalle College Choir. Fireworks will finish the celebration at 8:30 p. m.

The program is sponsored by the Prince Georges County Commissioners' Advisory Board.

State Threat To Education Draws Fire Of Catholics

C. U. Professors Attack Report by Commission, Fear For Private Schools

A grim struggle for survival by private schools, underlined with a threat of nationalized education, was pictured here yesterday to Catholic educators and alumni.

Four widely known figures in Catholic education warned of such an alarming plight in a three-hour blast at the report of the President's Commission on Higher Education.

Much of the discussion was directed at the proposal to exclude private institutions from governmental subsidies. Two participants in the program, the seventh annual Catholic University Forum, were dissenting members of the commission.

The most serious aspect of the proposals "is the tendency in the report toward statism," said Dr. Michael J. McKeough, assistant professor of education at Catholic University.

The commission was "packed with energetic men whose philosophy of education includes a belief in direct supervision and control by the state..." charged Dr. Roy J. Defarri, secretary general of Catholic University.

With the spread of governmental control, "private colleges and universities may even be deprived of essential rights... whether or not they refuse or are denied public subsidies," said Dr. Martin R. P. McGuire, professor of Greek at Catholic University and a member of the President's Commission.

Methods outlined in the report were compared to those of totalitarian governments, which frankly "proclaim their objective to nationalize every school."

Speaking was the Rev. F. J. O'Connor, professor of sacred scripture at Catholic University. His talk was written by the Rev. William E. McManus, assistant director of the Department of Education, National Catholic Welfare Conference, who did not return from Europe in time for the symposium.

In accord with the theme of the serious threat to private schools which the report posed were remarks by Rt. Rev. Frederick G. Hochwilt, secretary general of the National Catholic Education Association and the other dissenting member of the commission.

All four speakers supported the idea of expanded community colleges to reach greater numbers of students, as recommended in the report. Dr. McGuire, however, criticized the suggestion that privately controlled institutions be excluded from any share of Federal funds for the purpose.

"Since the higher education proposed by the commission, however, is defective in certain essentials from our point of view, we must make even greater sacrifices than before to render Catholic higher education accessible to much larger numbers of Catholic young men and women," he said.

As for extended adult education programs, Dr. Defarri said the commission "moves in the right direction when it urges the expansion of (such) educational opportunities."

He said American schools have been entirely too slow in promoting such a movement, and "Catholic educational centers have been the slowest of all."

The audience at the Hotel Statler numbered some 300 persons, including a generous proportion of Catholic nuns. The forum was held in conjunction with the 1948 reunion of Catholic University alumni.

High School Equivalent Examinations Are Set

Examinations for District residents to receive high school equivalent certificates will be held in the Negro schools November 16 and 17 and in the white schools November 18 and 19.

Applications for Negro residents must be filed by 5 p. m. November 3 and for white residents as soon as possible before the date of the examination.

Area News in Brief

Wheelchair Loses Its Place in Court

Mrs. Cora Brooks, 47, of 1024 H st. ne., whose alleged cures landed her in court on swindling charges, was herself relieved of a wheelchair yesterday.

She was up for arraignment on charges that she swindled four women out of a total of $1176 on promises that she could cure them of high blood pressure, ulcerated ankles, sore throat and business difficulties. Her medicines, it was said, included sheep wool, Indian herbs and a brew made out of silver dollars.

She came into court in a wheelchair that normally is in the basement of the courthouse. Beside her was her bondsman, Jimmie Conroy.

"Your honor," said Conroy, "I went to this defendant's home last night and she said she didn't want to come to court. I told her that we would fool the court by wheeling her in in a wheelchair so the court would think she was sick."

"Well, here she is, your honor," Judge Henry A. Schweinhart ordered her held. Marshals eased her out of her wheelchair and took her to the lockup. The clerk entered a plea of innocent.

Conroy was then released from the $2000 bond he had given on Mrs. Brooks.

Virginian Sentenced

Jacob A. Merritt, 24, of Petersburg, Va., was sentenced to from 45 months in jail yesterday for robbing a man of a wrist watch.

Judge Richmond B. Keech of District Court also gave Merritt an additional six months on a charge of hitting Policeman Joseph Longo while being questioned at a local police station.

Mrs. Andrews Burned

An early morning fire in the apartment of Bert Andrews, Washington correspondent for the New York Herald Tribune, burned a bed and mattress yesterday and sent Mrs. Andrews to Emergency Hospital with first-degree burns.

The Andrews, who live at 1661 Crescent pl. n.w., were awakened about 1:45 a. m. by smoke coming from an adjoining bedroom. Mrs. Andrews told police she had answered a phone in the bedroom earlier that night and might have left a lighted cigarette where it could drop on the bed.

$10 Fee Eliminated

The District Commissioners yesterday approved a change in regulations which will eliminate a $10 fee for investigating qualifications of special police officers. The General Accounting Office ruled the District government had no authority to impose the fee.

The remainder of the regulations, which were adopted early in September, were not changed by the Commissioners. The entire section, which will become effective January 1, requires new applications by present special officers.

Anti-Red Vote Urged

Ward W. Caddington, commander of District 2, Veterans of Foreign Wars, yesterday urged members of VFW posts in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties to vote for a proposed constitutional amendment which would prevent Communists from holding public office in Maryland. The amendment will be voted on at the November 2 election.

Report Made

Waterfront improvement on the north side of Washington channel will not be completed for nine years, the Board of Trade's River and Harbor Committee was told yesterday.

R. L. Wadsworth, chief of the river and harbor branch, Office of Army District Engineer, told about 40 members of the committee at a luncheon at Burlington Hotel yesterday that the present rate of appropriations will require about nine years to complete a pier now under construction and to build a yacht basin.

He also announced that a "favorable" report will be submitted to Congress which considers an Anacostia River channel 8 feet deep and 80 feet wide as far as Bladensburg, with commercial and recreational boat basins at the head of the channel.

Of the comprehensive report on the Potomac and Anacostia Rivers authorized by Congress in 1945, he said that only a minor amount of work has been done to date.

Wadsworth also noted that preliminary investigation had disclosed that users of the Potomac River channel are satisfied with its present dimensions.

The River and Harbor Committee approved a nine-point program for the coming year which aims, in part, at expediting completion of the Washington Channel construction program and reclamation of the Anacostia River flats.

House Nears Goal After Troubled Trip

Bethesda's rolling home neared the end of its three-week odyssey last night, but not without leaving a trail of frayed nerves.

Only a few feet from its goal, a vacant lot in the 4800 block of Cordell ave., after having been moved 3 1/2 blocks from 7754 Wisconsin ave., was the 1 1/2-story concrete-block house owned by Thomas W. Perry, Bethesda fuel dealer.

On October 12 the County commissioners handed Perry a 72-hour ultimatum to have the house moved—or else. But the deadline came and went. A week later the county board admitted defeat in its attempts to hasten the snail-like progress.

Telephone and electric workers yesterday removed overhead wires to speed the last lap of the journey. Traffic has been blocked along Arlington ave. for two weeks and twice the house came to rest in the middle of intersections at Fairmont and St. Elmo aves.

Commented Basil R. Frazier, Gaithersburg house mover, last night, "I'm going to drop $300 on this job; it took me twice as long as I expected."

Average Chest Gift Increased Nearly a Fifth

Chauncey G. Parker, general chairman of the 1949 Community Chest drive in Greater Washington, said last night that the average Red Feather gift this year is $11.86, as compared with a $10 average last year, and labeled the fact "encouraging."

Parker said, "that the trend of many gifts is upward. I feel confident that by sustaining the level of average gifts and by picking up only about 60,000 more contributions than we recorded last year, we can meet the needs of our Red Feather agencies."

Total number of contributions last year was 310,287. Chest workers Thursday reported 128,057 contributions totaling $1,519,794.90. This sum, announced at the half-way point in the 1949 Chest drive, is 33.28 per cent of the Chest's $4,566,790 goal.

Hearing Set On Rent Rise For 181 Units

A hearing on requests for rent increases on 181 units of the General Scott Apartments, 1 Scott circle, will be held November 15 at 9:30 a. m. at the District Rent Control headquarters, 1740 Massachusetts ave. n.w., before Examiner James G. Tyson.

Herbert Harvey, Inc., has asked for an increase from $53 for 115-room units to $60.42 and from $97.50 for three-room units to $111.15.

Tyson held a hearing yesterday on requested rent increases on 94 units of the Eddystone, 1301 Vermont ave. n.w. Present rents range from $50 for 1 1/2-room units to $82.50 for three-room units. Proposed rents are from $53.50 to $88.25.

A request for a 14 per cent increase on 73 units at 1615 and 1625 Franklin st. n.w. was filed yesterday by Paul Seiderman. Present rents are $39.50 for one-room units and $64.50 for three-room units.

YMCA Member Drive Goes 280 Over 1200 Goal

The YMCA's fall membership campaign went over the top last night, with workers securing 2200 more memberships than the 1200 goal.

The 1480 new memberships, including 838 reported at the final campaign dinner in the YMCA, 1736 G st. n.w., last night, brings the total membership to approximately 5600. C. C. Covington, membership secretary, said,

In the race between the "Republican" team and the "Democrat" team to secure new members, Mrs. Glycyka is engaged in a "fishing" expedition in the broadest meaning of the term. "No investigation should be made, it should, until there is a proper showing of facts."

The reply also repeated a charge previously made in court by the executors' attorneys, that Mrs. Glycyka "has already caused and has been responsible for unreasonable delays" in the will contest.

Mrs. Glycyka would receive $25,000 a year and certain property under the will, but would not share in the Times-Herald, which she attacked the will on grounds it was obtained by fraud, coercion and duress, and that her mother was of unsound mind when she made it.

The San Francisco concern, the Nation's biggest bank holding company, has asked the court to make the board "clarify" its charges, or enjoin the board from putting Transamerica on "trial" before it.

The board, in turn, has insisted its complaint is sufficient notice to the company of the charges and has asked the court to step out of the case on the ground it lacks jurisdiction to interfere except upon appeal from a final board decision.

Judge James W. Morris heard oral arguments Monday. He indicated he will announce a ruling next week.

Patterson Will Motion Is Opposed

Attorneys for the executors of the estate of the late Mrs. Eleanor M. Patterson, publisher, declared yesterday that her daughter is "engaged in a fishing expedition," and strongly opposed a request for all her papers.

The executors, however, stated they "have no objection to the inspection . . . of the originals and/or copies of any wills or purported wills executed during the life of Mrs. Eleanor Patterson."

"Countless thousands of papers" are involved in Mrs. Patterson's documents, part of them in 100 to 125 trunks, filing cabinets, etc., said the executors, and their investigation would be "a monumental task" with "tremendous expense" involved.

Civic Groups Ask Stronger Vagrancy Law

A stronger vagrancy law to offset the District's mounting crime wave was asked last night by the Federation of Civic Associations, meeting in the District Building board room.

Proponents of the resolution said that most crimes are committed by transients and that a vagrancy law with teeth would take this potential criminal element off the streets.

At the same time the body commended the Police Department for prompt action in apprehending the killers of Dr. Nathaniel Johnson, Southwest district, who was shot in his store October 12.

Fourth Precinct Pvt. Robert J. Reed, one of the arresting policemen, was applauded when he was presented from the floor by Robert E. Taylor, president of the Civic Betterment Association.

Opposition was expressed to the transfer of contracts for recreation areas from the National Capital Park Service to the District Recreation Board unless assurance is given that the "same nondiscriminatory policy" will be carried over.

In other action the federation approved unanimously the new site for Cardozo High School at Barry pl. w. st. Georgia and Sherman aves. n.w.; voted to establish an annual Civic Week during which a membership drive will be conducted by each of its 27 member associations; invited Robert Mattingly, principal of Cardozo High School, to describe the overcrowded conditions at the school at the November meeting and announced that Judge Armond W. Scott will be the honor guest at the annual banquet to be held December 8 at 8 p. m. at the Phyllis Wheatley YMCA.

Truck Driver Is Cleared in Traffic Death

A 26-year-old District truck driver was acquitted in Upper Marlboro Police Court yesterday of manslaughter and reckless driving charges arising from the death of Lewis E. Williams, 40, 720 Virginia ave. se., in a traffic crash August 26.

Leonard F. Robinson, 312 50th st., driver of a heavy gravel truck which collided with Williams' light Cooley sedan at the intersection of Military hwy. and Naylor rd., was found not guilty of both charges after police testified the bantam-type auto apparently had proceeded through a stop sign just before the crash. There were no witnesses to the accident.

Williams, an attendant at St. Elizabeths Hospital, apparently died instantly in the crash. His light sedan was dragged 259 feet by the truck after the impact.

Baltimorean Imports 100,000 Tulip Bulbs

Baltimore, Oct. 22 (AP)—John W. Sherwood, in receipt of 4 1/2 tons of imported tulip bulbs today, next spring.

The gardens at Sherwood's home attract throngs from eastern States every spring. Looking over the 100,000 bulbs, he predicted next year's display will be the gayest yet.

Hond, Polish Cardinal, Foe Of Reds, Dies

Warsaw, Poland, Oct. 22 (AP)—August Cardinal Hlond, Primate of Poland, died in St. Elizabeth's Hospital today following an emergency operation. He was 67.

The Roman Catholic prelate entered the hospital October 13 for an appendicitis operation. The operation appeared at first to have been successful, but hospital officials said complications developed, forcing a second operation last night.

The cardinal's condition was known to be critical, and two bishops administered the last rites of the church before the second operation, hospital authorities said.

Hlond, an outspoken foe of Nazis and Communists alike, was one of Poland's most vigorous and effective workers for world peace and one of the Catholic Church's leading liberals.

The cardinal was interned during World War II by the Nazis, who blamed him for telling the world about their atrocities in Poland. Since the war, he had frequently been in hot water with the Communist-dominated government of his country for attacks on "modern heathendom."

He voluntarily abolished the compulsory taxes which had supported the Catholic Church in Poland for centuries, and campaigned to improve the living conditions of Polish workers and peasants.

Cardinal Hlond was born July 5, 1881, at Breckowicz, Poland. He entered the church at an early age.

He served as provincial of Austria and Poland and Apostolic administrator of Upper Silesia before becoming Archbishop of Gnesen and Poznan.

He was only 46 when he was named to the Sacred College of Cardinals in 1927—the youngest cardinal.

In the 1947 elections, he supported since-elected Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk's Peasant Party against the government ticket.

The pro-Communists won the election in a pastorate, and later in 1947, Hlond called for a "showdown against heathendom," and made it clear that the church would continue to oppose Communism in Poland.

Some of the papers involved "confidential and competitive" operations of the Washington Times-Herald, which Mrs. Patterson owned and published; some are "literary property" of others, said the attorneys.

A motion to examine the papers was filed in District Court Monday by attorneys for Mrs. Felicia Glycyka, daughter of Mrs. Patterson, who is attempting to break her mother's will.

The motion requested the court to order the Riggs National Bank, temporary collector of the estate, to turn over any "wills, documents, papers, memoranda, books, accounts, letters, photographs, objects or tangible things" belonging to Mrs. Patterson.

Replying to the motion, the executors said it "fails to designate the documents . . . to be shown . . . (they) . . . contain evidence material to a matter involved . . . fails to exclude . . . privileged documents" would involve documents "between Mrs. Patterson and physical papers, and is too broad and general."

Excluding documents at the Times-Herald, said the executors, there are 100 to 125 containers with papers dating back to or before 1925, removed from Mrs. Patterson's home at 15 Dupont Circle, n.w., by the collector.

"It is clear, from the general nature of the motion herein," stated the reply, "that the caveator (Mrs. Glycyka) is engaged in a 'fishing' expedition in the broadest meaning of the term." No investigation should be made, it should, until there is a "proper showing of facts."

The reply also repeated a charge previously made in court by the executors' attorneys, that Mrs. Glycyka "has already caused and has been responsible for unreasonable delays" in the will contest.

Mrs. Glycyka would receive $25,000 a year and certain property under the will, but would not share in the Times-Herald, which she attacked the will on grounds it was obtained by fraud, coercion and duress, and that her mother was of unsound mind when she made it.

Transamerica Asks 'Clarified' Charge by Board

The Transamerica Corporation told Federal District Court in a brief yesterday that the Federal Reserve Board should be compelled to specify "how, when, and where" the board claims the company violated the Clayton Anti-trust Act.

The San Francisco concern, the Nation's biggest bank holding company, has asked the court to make the board "clarify" its charges, or enjoin the board from putting Transamerica on "trial" before it.

The board, in turn, has insisted its complaint is sufficient notice to the company of the charges and has asked the court to step out of the case on the ground it lacks jurisdiction to interfere except upon appeal from a final board decision.

Judge James W. Morris heard oral arguments Monday. He indicated he will announce a ruling next week.

A. M. Schwarz Dies; Head of Welfare Unit

Alexander M. Schwarz, 60, who for the past 16 years has been head of the Resources and Insurance Unit of the Public Welfare Department's Public Assistance Division, died at his home Thursday night after a long illness.

Mr. Schwarz, who had been in Georgetown Hospital with an asthmatic condition for the past two months, had left the hospital for his home at 312 S. St. Asaph st., Alexandria, only three hours before his death.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Monday at Chambers Southeast Funeral Home, 517 11th st. se., with burial in Washington National Cemetery.

Born in New York City, Mr. Schwarz attended the Case School of Applied Science and at one time had worked for the Pittsburgh Leader. Prior to his work for the welfare department, Mr. Schwarz had been engaged in private business. In his official position, he had wide acquaintance in insurance, legal and real estate circles in Washington.

Mr. Schwarz is survived by three sons, Ira, a student at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, Va., Alfred, now in the U. S. Army, and Lawrence, a Washington resident.

Dr. H.K. Craig, Former GW Professor, Dies

Dr. Henry Knox Craig, 76, one time George Washington University professor and grandson of a Civil War general, died yesterday after a brief illness.

A native of Portland, Me., he was the son of the late John Neville Craig and Isabella Slater Dyer Craig. He was named for his grandfather, Gen. Henry Knox Craig, chief of ordinance at the outbreak of the Civil War.

He was graduated from Columbian College (now George Washington University) in 1895. He was resident physician at Children's Hospital and was for several years a member of the medical faculty at George Washington University. He retired from active practice several years ago.

Dr. Craig is survived by a niece, Mrs. J. Fred McClerkin, of 2011 N. st. n.w., with whom he made his home.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 p. m. at the chapel of Joseph Gawler Sons, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. n.w. Private burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Dr. Cooksey, Dentist Here 40 Years, Dies

Dr. Claude B. Cooksey, practicing dentist for more than 40 years, died yesterday in Doctors Hospital after a heart attack.

A native Washingtonian, he practiced his profession here since his graduation from George Washington University in 1905. For the past 30 years he maintained offices at 1520 Q st. n.w. He lived at 2500 Q st. n.w.

He was a member of the District of Columbia Dental Society and Kappa Sigma Fraternity. Until the last few years, he was a member of the Washington Board of Trade and was active in Almas Shrine. In 1931 he was patron of the Washington Centennial Chapter of the Eastern Star.

For 16 years, Dr. Cooksey served with the District National Guard and the Naval Reserve. He attended the National Baptist Memorial Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Bessie L. Cooksey, and a daughter, Mrs. E. Hewitt Dimmitt of Silver Spring.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 11 a. m. at the S. H. Hines Funeral Home, 2901 14th st. n.w. Burial will be private.

Edward C. Miller

Blacksburg, Va., Oct. 22 (AP)—Edward C. Miller, 72, business manager of Virginia Polytechnic Institute from 1922 until his retirement in 1945, died today at his home here.

Funeral services will be held at the Miller home at 3 p. m. Sunday with burial in Westview Cemetery, Blacksburg.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Annie Miller of Warsaw and Washington; one brother, Judge Warren Miller, Stockton, Calif., and several nieces and nephews.

Mrs. Fannie K. Dawson

Funeral services for Mrs. Fannie K. Dawson, 78, mother of State Attorney Walter W. Dawson, of Montgomery County, who died yesterday at her home in Rockville, will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at the home. Burial will be in Union Cemetery, Rockville.

Death came after three severe heart attacks suffered during a 12-hour period Thursday night. Firemen from Rockville attempted unsuccessfully to revive her with oxygen.

Born in Quincy, Ill., Mrs. Dawson was married to Henry A. Dawson, a South Dakota Indian trader. The couple moved to Montgomery County in 1911, where Mr. Dawson died, in Rockville, in 1937.

Besides her son, Walter, Mrs. Dawson leaves two other sons, Lawrence of Philadelphia, and Joseph of Rockville. A daughter, Rose K. Dawson, also lives in Rockville, and there are seven grandchildren.

About Removing Nail Polish

How can I get nail polish out of a tan chambray dress? Nail polish remover didn't budge it, nor did it hurt the color.

E. T. G.

Wet the stain well with carbon tetrachloride. When this has had time to soak the spot, apply a drop of banana oil or fingernail polish remover. Place a pad under the stain and brush lightly with a soft cloth using an upward motion to pick up the dissolved polish. To remove any remaining color after the polish itself has been removed, use household bleach, but be sure to dilute the bleach and test its effect on the color on an inside seam before applying to the stain.

How can I get perspiration stains out from under the arms of a sand-colored gabardine dress?

E. T. G.

Colors changed by perspiration sometimes can be restored by dampening the stain with water and holding it over the fumes from an open bottle of ammonia. If this doesn't restore the color, then try sponging with vinegar. Colors damaged by perspiration cannot always be restored, particularly if the stain is old.

Maybe you can help me to help a very dear young lady friend of mine—aged 52. God bless her! She has completed a perfectly beautiful hand-made flower garden quilt and is anxious to sell it. Do you know of any possible "outlets" for this sort of thing or could you give me the name or names of some specialty or gift shop which might take it to sell on a commission basis?

Home Made Paints

Have you heard of finger painting? More and more young children have found delight in this most simple method of expressing themselves. Older children and adults, too, can enjoy the art of finger painting.

Procedure is simple. One takes glazed paper, like that sometimes used on shelves, wets it thoroughly, takes a fingerful or two of finger paint (the formula for making it is given below) and spreads the paint with tips of fingers, the thumb, palm of hand, or side of hand.

The paint can be bought in many stationery and toy stores but it is made quite easily at home. Here's one successful formula: Take 1/3 cup glossy laundry starch, 2 cups boiling water, 1/2 cup soap flakes. Dissolve starch in small amount cold water to make paste. Add boiling water. Cook until it becomes clear. Stir constantly. Remove pan from stove, add soap flakes, stir until dissolved. Put part of mixture into each of several small jars that can be kept tightly closed. Add vegetable or calamine coloring so that there are several colors from which to select.

Foods for Pregnant Period

Diet Guards Mother's, Baby's Teeth

EXPECTANT MOTHERS write to ask how they can insure good teeth for the baby even though their own teeth are poor. The time to give the child the best teeth his heritage allows is during the nine months before the baby is born, and during the nursing period.

The 20 teeth of the first set are all formed before birth, and even some of the permanent teeth are formed. The first set is most important, for if the baby teeth are lost too quickly, the jaw fails to develop properly and the permanent teeth are apt to be crowded too closely together.

Twice as much calcium is needed during pregnancy and almost three times as much during the nursing period. That is the chief reason a quart of milk is specified, and this amount increased to six glasses a day during the nursing period.

Normal development of the teeth depends not only on sufficient minerals, but on adequate vitamins, particularly A, C and D, the vitamins needed for efficient use of calcium and phosphorus. The mother-to-be should have daily one or two teaspoons of cod liver oil or its equal in a vitamin A and D concentrate. Two citrus fruits should be eaten daily to furnish vitamin C.

Protective nutrition during the pregnancy period is very important to a normal milk supply. Throughout the nursing period, even greater demands are made on the new mother, and the calories must be increased. However, it does not help the milk supply for the new mother to overeat on rich foods. Normally the calorie requirements during this period are high—2800 to 3000 daily. But just eating enormous amounts of food is not the answer. The menus should be built around the protective foods—milk, eggs, fresh fruits, fresh vegetables, whole grains and lean meat, and cod liver oil.

WHAT ABOUT the overweight mother who is nursing her baby? She should not gain more excess weight, and if the doctor approves, she can lose from 3/4 to 1 pound a week on a diet supplying 2400 to 2500 calories a day, all in the protective foods as follows: 1 1/2 quarts of milk, 1 egg, 3/4 to 1/2 pound lean meat (liver twice a week); also cheese, a second egg or fish to furnish more protein, 1 potato, 2 vegetables—always one a dark green, leafy vegetable, 2 citrus fruits and 1 other, 2 slices of whole-grain bread, 2 ounces of butter and 2 glasses of fruit juice.

Please consult with your own doctor before following a 2400-calorie weight-control diet for the nursing period. If you wish the special "Protective Nutrition for Expectant Mothers," please send a long, stamped addressed envelope to Ida Jean Kain at The Washington Post with your request.

Cranky 2-Year-Old Stage Is Part of Child's Growth

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

The parents are dismayed at the behavior of their child between the 24th and 30th months. This is a cranky period when the child cries temperately for no apparent reason. He may revert to uncleanly habits, though up to this moment his mother has proclaimed that he was "trained". The child of this age wants to do things for himself and yet he lacks the skill to bring them to successful completion. He pulls at his hose and shoes, he yanks at his buttons, but he needs help in getting himself dressed. When he plays, his toys have a habit of getting themselves entangled, or upset or refusing to work, and he is furious with them and cries in protest. He is concerned with rituals, especially when he goes to bed, and he is soft clay in their hands.

Let the child help you. Give him some of your time that is all his own for reading or story-telling. Cater to his desire for attention at bedtime. Give him the benefit of nursery school or put him in charge of some older child for a few hours a day. He'll learn how to play. It is a trying phase common to all children and it improves with growth.

Mrs. Streeter Named President Of National Colonial Dames

MRS. THOMAS WINTHROP STREETER, first director of the Marine Corps Women's Reserve, was elected president of the National Society of the Colonial Dames of America at the closing session of the organization's twenty-seventh biennial Council held at headquarters, Dumbarton House, she succeeds Mrs. Eitelbert Ide Low of New York, who held the office for seven years.

Known throughout the war as Colonel Ruth Cheney Streeter, the new society head is a member of the New Hampshire Society of the Colonial Dames of America. For a number of years Mrs. Streeter's mother, Mrs. William H. Schofield, served as president of the New Hampshire Society and as second vice president of the national society. Because of family tradition, the new president retained her membership in the New Hampshire Society after she moved to Morristown, N. J., her present home.

On Flag Day, 1943, the Colonial Dames presented Mrs. Streeter with a handsome stand of colors which were carried by the Marine Corps Women on several occasions. In 1946 the flags were returned to the society headquarters here. Other officers elected include Mrs. Robert M. Lewis of Connecticut, first vice president; Mrs. Peter Arrington of North Carolina, second vice president; Mrs. Frederic Atherton Adams of Colorado, recording secretary; Mrs. Arthur C. Levering of Maryland, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Kenneth C. M. Sills of Maine, treasurer;

MRS. THOS. W. STREETER

Mrs. Murray M. McGuire of Virginia, assistant treasurer; Mrs. George W. Gedeny of New Jersey, registrar; and Mrs. Earl M. Galbraith of Ohio, historian. Mrs. Low, retiring president, was elected honorary president.

What's Right With Family In America?

"What's wrong with the American family?" "Nothing," answers Albert Deutsch, one of America's most widely informed authorities on social and medical problems.

He gives his answer in an article in the November Woman's Home Companion in which he takes up charges that (1) one out of every three marriages is ending in divorce; (2) youth is going to the dogs; (3) the changing role of women in the family is detrimental.

"Let the prophets of doom howl," he comes out boldly, "the cold facts about present-day family life add up to anything but crisis."

Writing of the divorce rate, he points out that the high figures in 1945 and 1946 were not normal, that many were filed by wives who previously had been prevented from bringing suits against husbands in the armed services, that many were hasty wartime marriages that had run their allotted time. These were the figures that caused the alarming prediction that one of every three marriages was ending in divorce.

Divorce figures for 1947 show a drop of 25 per cent from the record 1946 rate, he continued, and unofficial estimates for 1948 indicate the decline will continue.

"More adult Americans are married today in proportion to our total population than at any time since 1890, the year the Government began compiling marital statistics," he points out stressing that there are fewer bachelors and spinsters among us than ever before and this certainly means that the family is not dissolving of itself—that the drive to found a family is at least as strong as ever.

The cruel assertion that "American parents are failing miserably in their obligations to their children," he calls a myth of modern times. The place of the child in a normal family nowadays is far happier than formerly," he continues. "The child's interest and well-

On the Club Front

Democrats Seen Likely to Win In Both Houses of Congress

"The Democrats have a good chance of capturing both the House and Senate in the November elections," Government economist Louis Bean told members of the Women's National Press Club at a luncheon meeting yesterday held in the Press Club auditorium.

Bean, author of a recent book, "How to Predict Elections," said that he based his forecast on three factors, trends of the past, present and future. He said that only four Democratic Senators at the most could be defeated by the GOPs.

Actual gain of GOP power in 1946 was in the industrial areas due to the impact of the first depression, such as rise in prices, income of real earnings lowered and the fact that many workers were thrown out of jobs due to peacetime reconversion of jobs. He said that the Republicans has showed no gain in rural areas where incomes have been higher than usual.

Bean would make no predictions on the winner of the presidential contest, saying that he preferred to base his conclusions on trends in 1950, rather than 1948.

'Coattail' Winners

The speaker said that if the usual 7 per cent of congressional candidates ride in on the presidential winner's coattails, Congress will go Republican. But if voters follow their party preference, Congress will be Democratic.

Pointing out that there are more Democrats than Republicans in the Nation, Bean explained that historically the Democrats have been stronger in presidential election years than in off elections. However, he warned that a record Democratic vote as so often claimed did not necessarily assure a Democratic victory and a light vote a Republican victory.

Dr. Dennis Brogan, member of the British Broadcasting Co., another political analyst who has been covering the United States political scene since the national conventions in Philadelphia, said that voting tides are associated with age groups . . . that as a whole younger voters in this country seem to associate themselves with the Democratic Party, which would be of great significance to future elections.

Cites British System

Dr. Brogan said that the complicated American system of requiring voters to register probably was one factor in the light ballots cast. Great Britain and other western European countries do not require registration before going to the polls and therefore, generally, poll heavier votes.

Bean said that the November vote might run as high as $9 million, but was more likely to be

St. Paul's Guild To Give Bazaar

St. Paul's Parish Guild will hold its annual bazaar on Tuesday, November 16, at Morton Memorial Hall. Christmas gift problems will be solved for many at the fancy-work booth, where an assortment of practical and inexpensive presents will be sold under the direction of Mrs. Hirst Hayes and Mrs. Frederick Cresswell.

Miss Mary Lindsey and Mrs. Herbert Wheat will have charge of the country store. At the apron booth a complete selection will be found whether a little tea apron or the cover-all variety. The most popular spot will probably be the home-cooked food booth where biscuits, cakes of all kinds, pies, puddings and hot breads will be sold.

Regional Girl Scout Leaders Hear Dr. Gilbreth Speak

With the last lines of the Girl Scout International song, "... we'll face the future with joy and courage and build a new world with our love," the two-day Region Three conference ended yesterday.

Approximately 1000 representative adult volunteers gathered in Washington Thursday for the conference at the Statler Hotel. These volunteers represented 114 Girl Scouts organizations of Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Virginia and Maryland.

At the afternoon meeting yesterday, Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth, national board member of the Girl Scouts, spoke on "Belonging, Our Great Opportunity."

Dr. Gilbreth said belonging meant adding or contributing to an organization. What you get from belonging, a sense of security and serenity, were the by-products, she said.

Following Dr. Gilbreth's talk the Girl Scouts of Washington and Alexandria, and of Arlington and Fairfax Counties presented the closing exercises. The ceremony was written and compiled by Mrs. Harry Sarkoris, national board member, and Mrs. Charlotte Moton Hubbard of the national staff. The director was Mrs. Leo Schmitt of Washington.

At Thursday's session, a balloting was conducted to designate the region's choice of regional officers who will be appointed by the Girl Scout National Board. The results, announced at the business meeting yesterday, were:

Dewey's Record Of Legislation Called Lacking

By Genevieve Reynolds

Mrs. India Edwards, director of the Women's Division, Democratic National Committee, yesterday lambasted GOP Presidential Candidate Thomas E. Dewey's social legislation record as Governor of New York State. At a press conference held in committee headquarters, she charged the Republican standard bearer with making false claims.

In attacking Dewey's legislation program Mrs. Edwards said "His welfare record is not what he says it is. Nothing in his record indicates that he would be a liberal President—the kind to which we have grown accustomed and the world needs."

Attacks Record

The head of the Democratic Women's Division maintained that Dewey's announced record on social legislation is "very misleading." "Actually, there has been no social legislation since Dewey was Governor that wasn't brought about by public opinion pressure," Mrs. Edwards said. "For example, there's the FEPC which he vetoed once but was finally passed only after the representatives of 400 religious and social agencies demanded it," she added.

"Except for the FEPC Dewey has slid along on the social legislation program of previous Democratic Governors," she insisted.

To back up her charges against Dewey, Mrs. Edwards read excerpts of letters from Mrs. Mary Andres Healey, chairman of the Joint committee, Teachers Association of New York; Mrs. Randolph Guggenheimer, chairman, Child Day Care Council of New York City; and Lawrence Cain, vice president of the D. W. Winkelman Construction Co.

Mrs. Healey, chairman, Joint Committee of New York Teachers Association, which is composed of 68 affiliated organizations, stated in a letter to Mrs. Edwards that only 30 per cent increase in appropriations had been made for New York teachers' salaries since the war and not the 80 per cent claimed by Dewey and the Republican National Committee. "Any salary increase over 30 per cent had to be borne by individual communities and did not come out of State appropriations," wrote Mrs. Healey. "State increases came to only $300 per teacher."

When queried as to the effect of the Democratic Party split on the final results of the election, Mrs. Edwards said that she didn't think the split would amount to much in the final showdown.

"Democratic women in the South have deviated less from the Democratic Party than the men," she explained.

Asked to comment on the current rumor that a deal had been made between Progressive Candidate Henry Wallace and President Truman for Wallace to throw his votes to the Democratic Party at the last minute, Mrs. Edwards replied that she had heard of no such bargain and doubted the existence of one, adding "I think Wallace might throw his votes to Truman if he were as good a patriot as he should be and I once thought he was."

In a discussion of her recent journey on President Truman's campaign train, Mrs. Edwards described Mrs. Truman and Mary Margaret Truman as "good campaigners. They were up early and late, always pleasant."

"Everybody wanted to meet Margaret," she continued, "she's so pretty and agreeable. Wherever the campaign train goes, everybody wants to see and meet Margaret. They call out a friendly greeting to her on the streets."

Attache Will Be Seminar Speaker

The Commercial Counselor of the Nicaraguan Embassy, Alfredo J. Sacaza, will be guest speaker at the weekly seminar of the Club de las Americas which will be held Thursday at 8 p. m. in Room 2631 of the Department of Commerce Building. A moving picture in Technicolor taken recently by the National Geographic Society will be shown during the lecture.

Guest speaker at the seminar on November 4 will be Philippe-Thoby Marcelin, noted poet and writer of Haiti. Mr. Marcelin is a poet-laureate of Haiti, author of several literary works and winner of the first prize in the literary contest organized under the auspices of the Pan American Union. "Literary Haiti" will be the subject of his talk and a Technicolor picture will be shown.

Home Observes Rally Day at Tea, Program

A more personal program of ministerial service is needed in today's institutions, the Rev. Willis R. Ford told the Board of Managers of the Florence Crittenton Home, and their guests, at a rally day program there yesterday.

The speaker, who came from Baltimore for the occasion, is Executive Secretary of the Council of Churches and Christian Education of Maryland and Delaware. In discussing religious services in public institutions, he declared that spiritual guidance should be geared to the individual needs of the patients and inmates. It should not, as is so often the case, be something which is crammed down their throats or which is read to them from a book.

Mrs. Robert E. Freer, president of the board, opened the annual rally at 1 p. m. It was the occasion for members of the 23 circles of volunteer workers, to report on activities of the past year and make payment of their annual dues.

Following the reports and talks, a tea and inspection of the home and hospital took place.

Lady Franks, wife of the British Ambassador, was among those presiding at the tea table. Others taking turns there included Mrs. Frederick R. Kerby, Mrs. T. E. Robertson, Mrs. Reba B. Smith, Mrs. Reginald H. Pledger, Mrs. Roy Frank, Mrs. Gilbert Rude, Mrs. P. H. Groggins, Mrs. Lambert O'Donnell and Mrs. S. C. Mitchell.

$100,000 Extortion Plot Foiled in N. Y.

To Tell It to Judge Counties Get Deadline for School Reply

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Richmond, Oct. 22.—Federal District Judge Sterling Hutcheson today called upon King George and Gloucester County school boards to file written replies by November 5 to petitions asking that they be held in contempt of his court for failure to equalize their school facilities for white and Negro children.

Judge Hutcheson called for the written answers to speed up the hearing on his order to the two boards to show why they should not be held in contempt. He said the hearing would continue probably late next month or early December. He is judge of the Federal District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia.

In the opening round of the contempt hearing here today, attorneys for both school boards sharply denied that the county school officials were in contempt of court.

The contempt proceeding is an outgrowth of Judge Hutcheson's order in July enjoining the two school boards from discriminating against Negro school children by failing to give them school facilities equal to those for white children.

A month ago, Richmond Attorney Martin A. Martin, Oliver W. Hill and Spotswood W. Robinson 3d, asked the court in a formal petition to go into the question of whether the school boards were in contempt.

Today's hearing, for the most part, was centered mainly on the King George schools. About 75 persons were present.

At the outset, Attorney Martin charged that nothing substantial had been done since Judge Hutcheson's July order to equalize school facilities at the King George Training School, the Negro high school, as compared with the King George High School for white children.

Martin said the school board failed (1) to provide an auditorium or gymnasium for the Negro high school children (2) to provide adequate library or laboratory facilities (3) to provide equal cafeteria facilities, and (4) to get the Negro high school accredited by the State board.

In reply, Attorney Horace T. Morrison, Commonwealth Attorney for King George County and counsel for the school board, told the court that "an honest effort has been made and thousands of dollars have been spent to provide equal educational facilities."

Morrison said it was admitted the training school building was not equal to that of the white high school, but if the question of buildings was to be an issue "more time is needed." He pointed out that Judge Leon M. Brazier of the Fifteenth Virginia Judicial Circuit last night authorized a special county election for November 6 on a $150,000 bond issue to finance improvements in the King George Negro schools.

"I contend that buildings have nothing to do with the educational process so long as there is room and it's sanitary," Morrison declared. "Brick and mortar do not make a school, and you can't get brains from a book. Some of our greatest men have been educated in one-room schools. I'm looking at one right now—John Marshall. (A portrait of the famous justice was on the wall of the courtroom.)"

Speaking for the Gloucester County school board, Attorney Charles E. Ford of Newport News, Va., told the court, "We're here on a citation for contempt, and we're not guilty."

He said the courses given in the white and Negro schools in Gloucester County were exactly the same "despite the sworn statement of the petitioner." The sworn statement said in part that the school board had failed and refused to provide equal courses for Negroes to those for white children.

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—Fooling of a plot to extort $100,000 from Edgar F. Luckenbach, Jr., 23-year-old inheritor of $6,600,000 was disclosed today by police.

Three men were arrested and admitted participation. Police Capt. John McCoy reported.

One of the trio had clippings about other wealthy persons. The men planned to repeat their scheme in Florida and Hollywood, McCoy said.

Luckenbach, heir to a steamship fortune and "angel" for several Broadway shows, told newsmen he received an extortion letter at his home Monday.

Referring to a "former-contributor" who "tried to notify the police," the letter said "this person committed suicide. You see, our ways and means committee has ways and means to make it look like suicide."

Luckenbach nevertheless took the matter to police, who arrested one of the three men last night outside Luckenbach's home east of Central Park.

The man, identified as Dale Neidich, 24, of Yonkers, N. Y., was picked up after Luckenbach had emerged from his home with a package purportedly containing the money.

The other two men were identified as Ansel Stolzberg, 27, and Howard Vey, 32, both of New York. All three are charged with attempted extortion and blackmail.

Luckenbach is the son of the late Edgar F. Luckenbach, who was head of the Luckenbach Steamship Co. and several subsidiaries.

Baltimore, Oct. 22 (AP).—Representatives of a dozen organizations argued before the University of Maryland board of regents today that setting up special graduate schools for Negroes does not mean equality of opportunity for an education.

They insisted that Negroes should be admitted to the university's professional schools and colleges.

"There can be no equality where there is segregation," said Franklin H. Williams, special counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Senator Tydings set up the point.

What would happen, he asked, if the university duplicated its schools brick by brick for Negro students. Would they be satisfied? "No," said Williams. He added that Negroes still would have the legal right to enter the white schools.

The Maryland Committee on Equal Educational Opportunity was another group to argue against separate schools.

It asked the regents to declare a public policy for graduate professional training of all races, creeds and colors and implement the statement with directives to the heads of the university's divisions.

The University Law School has for several years accepted Negroes, but all the other divisions in Baltimore and College Park have not permitted any to enroll.

Williams argued the State is denying Negro students their constitutional rights.

He said there is a further violation of the law because the university accepts large grant college funds from the Federal Government and the regulations under which these funds are dispensed specifies there shall be no discrimination.

He also said he could find no law in Maryland which requires segregation of white and Negro students.

Even Kids Can't Find Stage Here

By Richard L. Coe

NOW IT'S the small fry for whom a theater can't be found in this proud Capital. As a result, the Children's Museum of Washington will be presenting Clare Tree Major's Children's Theater of New York over at the Virginia Theater in Alexandria.

This would have been the seventeenth season within the city confines for the popular juvenile series, but George Washington University's Lerner Auditorium has upped its rates over last year by a third. Under present conditions, the Children's Museum can't pay this kind of money.

Thanks, however, to what Director Matilda Young calls splendid cooperation on the part of the Virginia's Manager Valentine Smith, his theater will house the professional plays at a rate which permits the same subscription prices that have held for the last several years. The top price for the series of six plays is $9.60, as against Philadelphia's charge of $14.50 for the same series.

The Children's Museum, which has yet to find a home other than its Trailercoach Museum, at Wisconsin and Western avenues, formerly presented Mrs. Major's plays at the National. The rental used to be $150 the performance. Two years ago the switch was made to Lerner, where the charge was $400 for two performances. Now the university wants $600 for the two showings.

This is, I'm told, a definite concession on the part of the university, which opens its hall "only for meetings or functions of a general educational nature." The scale is said to depend on the numbers the renting group is likely to attract and the price of tickets. But it's steep enough to freeze Children's Theater out of Washington.

Another aspect of the Children's Theater productions has been the headlines last spring in the matter of stagehand union regulations. This subject is so ephemeral and complex that I won't even attempt to write about it, except to report that the Children's Museum has never been able to get any written agreement, that it has been told to pay in cash and not by check, and that at one point it was paying for 9½ union men. All that, as I say, is too confusing for me.

Opens November 20
The season will open Saturday morning, November 20, with Hans Christian Andersen's "The Snow Queen." There will be two performances, at 10:45 a. m. and 2 p. m. Other plays in the series will be "Hansel and Gretel," December 28; "The Poor Little Rich Girl," January 29; "Pinocchio," on February 26; "Little Women," April 2, and a final play to be announced, probably for March 19.

Alexander's Virginia Theater is at 601 1st st. to the left of Mount Vernon bldg., as you enter Alexandria. The theater offers free parking for 500 cars. Buses marked "National Airport" and "Alexandria Express" leave the south side of Pennsylvania ave. at 12th st. Director Young suggests that parents who are in the habit of leaving children at the theater and returning for them after the play can put them on the bus and know that they will be returned safely to the bus stop where they can meet them.

Subscriptions for the series may be made by mail order now to the Children's Museum, Wisconsin and Western avenues, n.w., Washington, 15. The museum's phone number is Wisconsin 6223, a number you won't find in the current phone book.

"JOHNNY BELINDA" is doing nicely, thank you, at the Warner and the Ambassador, where hold-over weeks are in progress. The consensus is that Jane Wyman's intelligent and moving Belinda is one of the year's more sensitive performances. . . . Without a doubt, this will be talked of again at Oscar time.

TODAY—the Hippodrome presents two of those revivals promised by Manager Bernie Lust some time back. . . . "Green for Danger" is the mystery yarn which pre-empted Alastair Sim as a novel detective. . . . "The Adventurers" gives us Deborah Kerr as a spunky Irish lass who thinks she might battle with the Nazis against England. . . . Next at the Hipp will be a revival of "Henry V," which should allow for even more talk about the differences, similarities, etc., between Hank Cinqu and Olivier's not-so-gloomy Dane.

$18,411 in Year Pay Voucher Ruse Detailed By 2 Agents

Secret Service agents disclosed yesterday how Warren L. Arnett, 32, pretended he was still in the Army and collected $18,411 by signing pay and allowance vouchers during the last year.

Arnett, who resided here at the Hotel Raleigh and comes from Valley Cottage, N. Y., was held under $5000 bond. United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence ordered him removed to Albany, N. Y., for trial for the forging of a $602 Government check.

Secret Service agents Thomas J. Kelley and Clarence R. Baum testified that Arnett admitted forging 31 vouchers. He was arrested last week at Bolling Field where, dressed in a first lieutenant's uniform, he attempted to cash a $600 voucher.

The agents said that Arnett, a veteran of 17 years in the service and a one-time lieutenant, was well acquainted with Army paylines. They said that he went on an Army base, with several sets of forged travel orders in his pocket.

The names on the vouchers were those of friends in the service, it was said. The first thing that Arnett did was to check the officer's roster to make sure that the voucher he cashed would not contain the name of an officer on the base, according to the agents. Then, Arnett collected on the fraudulent voucher, they said.

The agents said that part of the proceeds went to finance an unsuccessful used car venture, while the rest was used to support his family in New York and for "high living" expenses.

Last 4 Cruises Of Potomac Set For Weekend

For those who delight in Nature's transformation with the coming of fall, the National Capital Park Service has planned a week-end of activity ranging from bird-watching to boat-riding.

Park Superintendent Irving C. Root yesterday announced the following plan:

The last four Potomac River cruises of the season by the "Canal Clipper" will be made on Saturday and Sunday. The boat will leave the Foundry Branch Dock at Foxhall and Canal roads at 2 p. m., returning at 4:30 p. m. both days. Tickets may be purchased at the Capital Transit Co.

The "Potomac Clipper" will leave District Basin Inlet Bridge in West Potomac Park at 10 a. m. Sunday for a historical sightseeing cruise to Fort Washington, Md.

Persons interested in seeds and fruits of autumn and winter preparations by Wildlife on Theodore Roosevelt Island will meet with Park Naturalist Kenny Dale at 3 p. m. Sunday, at Wisconsin ave. and K. st. n.w.

A similar tour of Fort Dupont Park will be conducted at 3 p. m. Saturday from Randle Circle, Minnesota and Massachusetts aves. se.

The final bird outing of 1948 will be an observation walk in Kenilworth Aquatic Gardens from 7 to 8:30 a. m. Sunday with Naturalist Drew Chick, starting from Douglas st. and Kenilworth ave. ne.

D. C. Suspends Phoebe, Assistant Building Inspector

Assistant District Building Inspector William M. Phoebe was officially reprimanded yesterday and suspended from duty without pay for 60 days by the District Commissioners.

The decision followed hearings on charges that Phoebe, who has been in the District service for 22 years, submitted false reports on inspections. The suspension, which began yesterday, although Phoebe is permitted to appeal the decision to the Civil Service Commission within 10 days.

Phoebe has cited ill health as the reason why he did not make the inspections as reported. He said he became ill on the job and entered a movie theater to recover.

Court Rights Case Put Off To Nov. 8

Oral arguments before the Supreme Court on rights of District citizens to sue and be sued in Federal courts outside Washington were postponed yesterday to November 8.

Hearing of the case, involving the constitutionality of the 1940 Gwynne Act extending Federal jurisdiction to suits by citizens of the District and Territories, originally had been set for yesterday. The Supreme Court previously announced that on Monday it will be in recess until November 8.

Record 224 Bu.-to-Acre Corn Yield Reported

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 22 (AP)—A world's record yield of 224 bushels of corn to an acre was reported today by Eugene Funk, Jr., president of the Funk Brothers Seed Co.

Funk said the yield was obtained on a 5-acre field near Wayland, Iowa. He said the grain was a new "G" type hybrid. The corn will be used for feeding to livestock, Funk added.

Agriculture Department officials in Washington said they did not keep statistics on record yields, but that the highest yield they know of is 194 bushels to an acre produced by Agriculture Department experimental lands.

Fine Suspended Court Easy On 'Student' Of Narcotics

A young marine who said he was studying narcotics first hand to prepare to become a Boston policeman yesterday was given a suspended $25 fine for disorderly conduct by a Bethesda Police Court judge.

The marine told Judge Warren Browning that marijuana cigarettes produce "very deep thinking," among other effects.

Two Bethesda policemen who stopped a cab for a minor traffic violation early Thursday said Marine Pvt. Robert Maloon, 18, stationed at the Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, was in the cab and immediately started "screaming and fighting."

Placed in the Bethesda lockup, Maloon stripped off his clothes and started shadow boxing, police said, and "made so much noise" he was transferred to the county jail at Rockville.

Police testified Maloon told them when arrested that he had been smoking marijuana, but the youth told the judge yesterday he was under the influence of benzadrine.

Maloon said in court he had smoked marijuana "about a month ago."

Court officials quoted Maloon as saying, "When I got out of the Marines, I want to join the Boston police force, and I have been studying the effect of various narcotics and stimulants to help me in my work."

New Process Prints Without Ink, Presses

Detroit, Oct. 22 (AP)—A new electric process that can take a picture and make a print of a line drawing in 45 seconds was announced here today.

After more research, it might be used to take pictures or portraits, or to turn out print in a new kind of printing press, its developers declared.

The process uses a coated metal plate that sees and remembers an image by static electricity, instead of chemicals as in present photography. Printing is done simply with a dry powder and static electricity. No chemicals or liquids are used.

A new name was coined for the process—xerography (xero-graphy). It comes from the Greek xeros, meaning dry, and graphos, meaning writing.

Xerography was announced and shown to the Optical Society of America by Dr. R. M. Schaeffer of the Battelle Memorial Institute, Columbus, Ohio, and Joseph C. Wilson, president of the Haloid Co. of Rochester, N. Y.

Battelle scientists demonstrated a printing press based on the new methods. It turns out 100 feet of printed copy in a minute. It uses only ink as powder and electricity, with no rollers, rollers, or heavy presses.

Pictures of live subjects can be made now, but are not yet satisfactory.

The basic principles were developed by Chester F. Wilson, New York patent attorney and physicist.

Shoe Makers Demand 5000 Take Pay Cut

Haverhill, Mass., Oct. 22 (AP)—Shoe manufacturers in this city today demanded that 5000 workers take a "drastic wage reduction."

This demand came even as Western Electric, the city's second largest industry, granted 2000 workers pay raises ranging from 2 to 13 cents an hour.

A spokesman for the shoe manufacturers' board of trade said the industry had overproduced with "production far exceeding demand."

Haverhill—once known as "the queen shoe city of the world"—specializes in women's shoes. A year ago the CIO United Shoe Workers Union representing the workers withdrew their demands for a 10 per cent pay increase when manufacturers protested higher wages would force them out of business.

The present contract expires at the end of the year.

Meanwhile, the Communication Workers of America (Independent) accepted Western Electric's offer of 8 to 13 cents hourly pay boost in a contract to run until November 1950.

3 Numbers Raids, 3 Arrests Made By D. C. Police

Vice squad detectives yesterday in an hour and a half raided three places and arrested three men on numbers charges. They said that a preliminary investigation took them a week.

At 12:30 p. m. they stopped at 622 Massachusetts ave. n.w., and arrested Frank E. Brown, 38, of that address. He was charged with operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips. Arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence, he was released under $1500 bail pending continuance of his case November 5.

A short time later they arrested Nathaniel L. Drummond, 40, a presser, in a valet shop at 3106 Georgia ave. n.w. Drummond, who lives at 636 Columbia rd. n.w., also was charged with operating and possession.

At 1:50 p. m. detectives made their third raid at 628 L st. se., and arrested Peter J. Knitter, 46, of 4604 Bromley ave., Bradley Park, Md. Knitter was charged with operating and possession. The latter two were released under $1500 bond each for appearances in Municipal Court today.

Storling Biological Discoveries Predicted

Geneva, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP)—Dr. Hugh S. Taylor, dean of the Princeton University graduate school, today predicted startling biological discoveries within the next 50 years which may change human development. He spoke at a special convocation of Hobart and William Colleges, as part of the inauguration of Dr. Alan W. Brown as president of the colleges Saturday.

Negro School May Achieve State Rating

Arlington County's only Negro high school may be accredited this year by the Virginia State Board of Education for the first time in the school's 15-year history.

This belief was expressed yesterday by Stephen M. Snyder, principal of the Hoffman-Boston High School, after filing his annual preliminary report to the State Board.

Snyder based his belief on such facts in his report as: There are now enough teachers to include all required subjects and some electives in the curriculum.

Library facilities have been provided. The school has reached the minimum required enrollment of 100 pupils in grades 8 to 12.

There are 150 pupils enrolled this year, Snyder said, compared with 86 last year. Two new teachers have been added and another is to be engaged as soon as possible, he said.

The Hoffman-Boston school has figured in several controversies during which the school has been criticized as inadequate.

In one case, a 15-year-old girl student unsuccessfully sought admission to the white Washington-Lee High School for courses not provided at the Negro school.

In another, Negro students attending District schools were forced to enroll at Hoffman-Boston or pay for their own tuition after the Arlington School Board discontinued paying their District tuitions.

The county school board in other action has provided tuition for vocational students at the Negro Regional Vocational School at Manassas rather than institute vocational training at Hoffman-Boston.

Shortcomings still existent at the school were cited by Snyder as the lack of lockers, gymnasiums, showers or place to eat. The new gymnasium, shop and cafeteria which are proposed to be built with funds from the $4,750,000 bond issue to be voted on November 2 are all badly needed, the principal said.

Pentagon Worker Found Dead With Bullet in Head

A 36-year-old Pentagon employee was found dead in his Alexandria apartment Wednesday night with a bullet wound in his head.

He was Harry Stiechka, a Pentagon stationery engineer. Stiechka was found by his estranged wife, Mrs. Ruth Stiechka, about 7:15 p. m., police said, when she went to visit him.

According to police, the engineer had been dead about "six to eight hours" when he was found. They said he was shot once and that his body was on top of a 22 rifle.

Dr. John A. Sims, city coroner, told police the shooting apparently was a suicide. No note was found, police said. He lived at 409 Cameron st., Alexandria.

Finland to Fight Red-Led Strikes 'With All Means'

Helsinki, Finland, Oct. 22 (AP)—Interior Minister Aaro Simonsen declared tonight the government will use all means available to fight the spread of Communist-led strikes now under way in Finland.

Some 2000 workers have been on strike for two weeks at the Arabia China factory, and nearly 3000 dock workers in Helsinki have walked out in sympathy. Eighteen unloaded freighters are anchored in Helsinki harbor.

Additional sympathy strikes are scheduled for tomorrow by 1700 dock workers at Turku, in southwestern Finland, and by an unestimated number of dockers at Kemi, in the north. None of the walkouts has been authorized by the Finnish Trade Unions Congress.

Simonsen said nine demonstrators were arrested at the Arabia plant today for throwing rocks at police, and that only one of the nine was listed as a worker there.

Canada Offers To End Federal Control of Rents

Ottawa, Oct. 22 (AP)—The Canadian government offered today to abandon federal control of rents anytime after March 31, 1950, that any provincial or state government cared to take over.

Rents on new properties in Canada have been decontrolled now nearly two years. From the first of next month, rents of old properties will be decontrolled whenever present tenants move.

In addition, rent ceilings on raised by 5 per cent. One 10 per cent increase over wartime ceilings was authorized last year.

Choral Evensong To Open Canvass

A choral evensong for Episcopal churches in Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax Counties, will be held at 8 p. m. Sunday at St. Paul's Church, Alexandria.

The Right Rev. Theodore Russell Ludlow, suffragan bishop of the diocese of Newark, and the Right Rev. Frederick Deane Goodwin, Bishop of Virginia, will speak. The service is to publicize the opening on November 7 of the National-wide Episcopal "every-member-canvass," in which members of the church are called upon to make pledges for the work of the church for the coming year.

Arlington Pastor Accepts Iowa Call

The Rev. Robert L. Ryser, pastor of the Cherrydale Baptist Church, Arlington, has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Walnut Street Baptist Church, Waterloo, Iowa.

He will succeed the Rev. Dr. Robert T. Ketchum, who has been named national representative of the General Association of Regular Baptists.

FOR BEST SERVICE PLACE YOUR ADS EARLY

The steadily growing volume of classified ads in The Post, combined with the practice of many advertisers who phone late in the day, makes it difficult to devote the time and assistance to these late callers which is needed to prepare the most effective possible copy.

To assure receiving this help from your ad-maker, please try to call during the morning or early afternoon.

THE WORLD IS GOING TO THE DOGS (AGAIN)

The World Is Going to the Dogs (Again)

A friend of mine on the police force calls attention to two grim appraisals of a troubled world. The first says:

"Our earth is degenerate. Children no longer obey their parents. Everybody wants to write a book. The end of the world is near."

The second is in the same vein, but much more detailed. It runs like this:

"Children now love luxury; they have bad manners, contempt for authority, show their disrespect for their elders. They contradict their parents, chatter before company, gobble up dainties at the table, cross their legs, and tyrannize their teachers."

My learned policeman friend cautions, however, that we mustn't get too gloomy about these appraisals.

He tells me the first one was written by a discouraged Egyptian priest in 4000 B. C., and Old Man Socrates set down the second one, more than 2000 years ago.

MISCELLANY

Mrs. Milton Drayson of 404 Newcomb st. se. believes that children should "learn by doing." So when she brings a load of groceries home from the store, her 3-year-old son takes the key, and opens the door for mama. Except that the other day the little fellow thought it would be nice to drop the key in the mailbox—and Uncle Sam had to come to the rescue. Giles A. Clute, jr., clerk in charge of the Congress Heights Postoffice station, had to come out and open the box before Mrs. Drayson could get into her apartment.

...L. L. True suggests that this would be a good time to repeat an "Add Names" item we carried a long time ago—the one about the Arlington (Va.) resident named Warren Dewey, who lives on Taft st., and lists his political affiliation as "Republican" (what else?).

There was an interesting one of our afternoon contemporaries the other day. It advised home owners that they could buy "thousands of them, new, delivered, for only 50 cents each," and even gave the dimensions. The only point that wasn't covered was an explanation of what "them" referred to. . . . Emmet Dougherty reminds me that we mustn't forget to mention that Washington Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle will be greeted by Catholic University graduates and their ladies at the alumni association's homecoming banquet (Saturday) tonight, and that tickets are available at the university's alumni office. . . . And Mrs. J. E. Lawlor of 704 Marshall st., Falls Church, Va., reminds me that the St. James' Parish Council of Catholic Women will hold a tea from 3 to 5 tomorrow afternoon at the Walnut Hill estate of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Arnold. (You can get there by going out Lee blvd. to Annandale rd. and then left for 3 1/2 miles). . . . Vagrant thought: Do you suppose people with 7 million dollars are as happy as people with 8 million?

PIED TYPE DEPT.

The printers are still the funniest fellows on a newspaper, but sometimes they get a little help from the other departments.

Barbara S. Yeaman of 2344 Nebraska ave. nw. notes a classific ad in the October 17 issue of a local paper which promises: "GI preference given until October 16."

That's about as much preference as the vets usually get, I'm afraid.

Sophie Goldman of 3948 Blaine st. ne. suspects that babies are running much bigger this season—because we recently advised a sale of diapers and gave the size as "27 inches by 72 inches."

Paul Muse, managing editor of the Manassas (Va.) Messenger, gets a kick out of our reference to "California's triumph over California." And he adds: "Down here, we're just waiting for a type to get into the District Line."

Inasmuch as it's bound to happen sooner or later, Paul, I hope it's later. Much later.

Speaking of time, Tom Beasley, our Dorchester House correspondent, is still trying to figure out our statement that a Gaithersburg householder had a deadline of "89 a. m." on a certain job.

Having been a reporter himself back in his Chicago days,

Tom ought to know that 89 a. m. is when morning newspapers get to bed.

B. L. Tash of 752 Silver Spring ave., Silver Spring, Md., and Mrs. K. O.K. of Arlington, Va., team up to blow the whistle on the proofreader who failed to catch:

"The Kansas Jayhawkers shared the conference championship in 1946 and again last year."

What a horrible time their coach must have had in the 901 years between titles.

IS THIS "RYE" HUMOR?

Poet Jay Aitch continues on his prose-alc way with the observation that "a pink elephant is a beast of bourbon."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Precious little Maltese kitten, terribly affectionate." (Michigan 1339).

LET'S RUN THROUGH THAT PLAY AGAIN, BOB

Bob Wolff, hard-driving radio and television sportscaster, seemed unusually placid when I ran into him the other day.

When I remarked about this unusual state of affairs, Bob mused:

"I'm getting so accustomed to being tense that when I'm calm I get nervous."

WHEN GALLAHER TELLS IT, IT'S FUNNY

WTOP's Eddie Gallaher, who is slightly Irish as one might suspect, tells me that a com-patriot of his had a harrowing experience the other night.

As he was walking home along a very dark street, a holdup man accosted him and snarled: "Your money or your life!"

"Take my life," pleaded the Irishman. "I'm saving my money for my old age."

advised a sale of diapers and gave the size as "27 inches by 72 inches."

Paul Muse, managing editor of the Manassas (Va.) Messenger, gets a kick out of our reference to "California's triumph over California." And he adds: "Down here, we're just waiting for a type to get into the District Line."

Inasmuch as it's bound to happen sooner or later, Paul, I hope it's later. Much later.

LET'S RUN THROUGH THAT PLAY AGAIN, BOB

Bob Wolff, hard-driving radio and television sportscaster, seemed unusually placid when I ran into him the other day.

When I remarked about this unusual state of affairs, Bob mused:

"I'm getting so accustomed to being tense that when I'm calm I get nervous."

WHEN GALLAHER TELLS IT, IT'S FUNNY

WTOP's Eddie Gallaher, who is slightly Irish as one might suspect, tells me that a com-patriot of his had a harrowing experience the other night.

As he was walking home along a very dark street, a holdup man accosted him and snarled: "Your money or your life!"

"Take my life," pleaded the Irishman. "I'm saving my money for my old age."

Farmers Learn About Lobbies

By Drew Pearson

Chicago.—Out here in the Middle West, farm voters have begun to learn something about the big Washington lobbies and what they did to the Eightieth Congress. The farmers learned the hard way—and they aren't too happy about it. For the lobbies have helped to send the price of corn skidding to uncomfortable lows.

Most interesting thing about the big grain lobby is that its backstage operators were largely Argentines and French refugees. Working behind the scenes through American stooges, they put the following two vital provisions through the Eightieth Congress.

1. Prohibited the Government from acquiring more storage space for wheat and corn purchased at parity prices from farmers. Since the Government is barred from renting additional storage for the bumper crop, it can't buy all of the grain now going to market, and farmers lacking storage have to sell out at lower prices.
2. Tucked into the Marshall Plan Act was an innocent provision that the Marshall Plan Administrator shall "utilize private channels of trade." The grain lobby not only put this through Congress, but has now pressured Paul Hoffman into ruling that the Commodity Credit Corporation, highly efficient United States agency which has bought grain for Europe for years, is now by-passed, and more expensive private brokers will buy the grain instead. Farmers and the taxpayers bear the extra cost.

Refugee Lobby

The "Big Three" of the grain trade are the chief beneficiaries from the latter Eightieth Congress. They are:

1. Bunge Corp., owned by Bunge & Born of Argentina and Uruguay.
2. Continental Grain Corp., owned by the following Park ave. refugees: Jules, Rene and Michel Friberg; Louis Ullman and Lucien Lang.
3. Leval & Co., controlled by a three-man voting trust—Fernand Leval, Leopold Stern and Jacques Kayloff.

These three groups worked with and through the North American Grain Export Association and the National Grain Trade Council. Their chief buttonholer on Capitol Hill was former Congressman Roger Slaughter of Kansas City whom President Truman purged in the 1946 elections.

Slaughter, though a Democrat, rates higher with Republicans than with his own party, and had no trouble controlling congressional votes. In fact, he did a masterful job.

Slaughter's ace-in-the-hole was his old friend, Congressman Jesse Wolcott of Michigan, Chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, who insisted on inserting a provision in the Commodity Credit Charter that the Government could not acquire additional storage space.

Formerly the Government could store 300 million bushels, but this year only 50 million, so the price of grain received by many farmers has tumbled below parity.

Note: Despite the lobbying law, Slaughter failed to register as a lobbyist. However, the Justice Department unearthed a letter written by the Northwestern Grain Export Association, March 31, soliciting contributions from its members to pay Slaughter's salary. The Justice Department put Slaughter's case before the grand jury, but did not push prosecution—perhaps because it was feared Truman would be accused of persecuting an old political enemy.

Gambling Politics

One of the most respected and efficient members of Congress during the past decade has been GOP Representative Everett Dirksen of Pekin, Ill., now stepping out to join the Dewey entourage. Out in rock-ribbed Illinois the Republicans aren't any too happy about the man they are supposed to elect as his successor, Judge Harold Velde.

Velde has received heavy financial support from Bill Degaris of the night club gambling fraternity, and the other day one of his campaign managers had a highly significant conversation with Harry Neumiller, president of the Hunt-Tube Manufacturing Co. of Peoria.

Mistaking Harry for his brother, L. B. Neumiller, who is president of the Caterpillar Tractor Co., Velde's solicitor asked for a campaign contribution. Harry Neumiller declined.

"You better think that over," replied Velde's money-raiser. "Don't forget that Judge Velde sits on the Tazewell County Court and has a lot to say about fixing taxes for the county. Don't forget that the Caterpillar Tractor Co.'s property is all in Tazewell County."

"You happen to have the wrong man," replied Harry Neumiller. "But if you think blackmail will get a campaign contribution out of either me or my brother, you're mistaken."

The Negro's Friend

One interesting point being watched by the politicians is whether Curley Brooks, Republican, "The Chicago Tribune's Senator," will be able to capture the huge Negro vote of Chicago and East St. Louis. Brooks is now claiming to be the great friend of the Negro. But—more than any other Senator he was responsible for the success of Senate filibusters against civil rights measures.

He blocked them by a quite simple procedure. As chairman of the Senate Rules Committee, he failed to bring out a resolution on cloture—to shut off filibusters. As early as April 3, 1947, a majority of Brooks' Rules Committee approved an antifilibuster rule.

But the redoubtable Curley let the measure gather dust in his committee. For more than a year he would not and did not bring it out for open debate. As a result when the antipoll tax bill came up in July, 1948, it was promptly filibustered out of the Senate.

Two Republicans referred to this at the time—Vandenberg of Michigan and Morse of Oregon. But Senator Brooks remained motionless. Now he claims to be the great friend of the Negro.
